Association Believes Wool Act Must Continue For Sheep Producers To Survive

ANDY ANDREWS

KEMPTON (Berks Co.) — Sheep producers could find themselves out of business if U.S. senators and representatives are successful in eliminating or drastically restructuring the National Wool Act of 1954.

That was the message approximately 75 sheep producers from all sheep-producing states, including Alaska and Hawaii, took home from the recent annual summer meeting of the American Sheep Industry (ASI) board of directors in Rapid City, S.D.

According to Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association President Joseph R. Vogel, the problem is that the facts surrounding the act are not understand by the news media and the general public.

Acccording to the ASI, the Act came into being as a result of a move to help protect sheep producers from a flood of wool following the lowering of trade restrictions after World War II. The program, according to then-U.S. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Ross Rizley, was set up to be "self-financing."

The U.S. was trying at the time to prevent damaging markets with the beleaguered economy of Australia, hit hard by the war. Wool flooded into the U.S., dropping domestic prices drastically. Sheep producers knew they were in trouble, so they petitioned Congress. Congress side-stepped efforts to set up restrictions, and instead passed the Act.

The National Wool Act allows up to 70 percent of the total tariffs on imported wool and wool products to go to the program to provide incentive payments to wool and mohair producers, according to ASI. Payment is based on the percentage needed to bring the national average market price received by producers up to the support price determined annually by the USDA.

Nearly 70,000 wool producers receive program payments, ranging from very small to very large operations. It includes payment caps. Wool Act incentive pay-

Somerset Livestock Winners Named, Sale Brings In $138,984

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — The gross receipts for the 1993 Somerset County Fair's Junior Livestock Sale topped the 1992 sale figures by nearly $25,000, despite the fact that 38 fewer animals were sold this year.

According to the sale statistician, Doyle Paul, Berlin, the 287 animals grossed $138,984 at this year's sale and should prove to doubtful 4-H'ers and FFA'ers that it's still about the best place to sell their animals.

"We had an excellent sale," said Paul. "I'm impressed, especially when compared to last year," he said.

Paul noted that it was the fair board's evaluation of the second year Saturday sale since moving it from a Friday night event beginning last year. Their decision at the time had been unpopular with many people.

So when some 50 new buyers signed up for the 1993 sale, even though others dropped out, a hefty increase was netted in the number of purchasers according to one fair director. And they came from all over, as far away as Dubois and parts of Maryland.

Kami Hillegass, Fairhope, had the top selling lamb with her home grown champion Suffolk weighing 130 lbs. It brought a tidy $1,430 after selling for $11 per lb. to Bob Bastian of the Somerset Animal Hospital.

Lindsay Schmuck's grand champion Hampshire brought $7.75 per lb. for a total of $961 from Riverside and BiLo Markets in Somerset. Schmuck is from Scullton.

Ashland Petroleum, Confluence, paid $10 per lb. for the reserve grand champion Suffolk belonging to Luke Svonavec, Rockwood, for a total of $1,080.

In 1992, the champion lambs both sold for $6.50 a lb. and the group champion for $1.30. This year the group champion owned by Michelle Coddington, sold for $6.

Market lamb sale average with champions was $1.66 per lb. Without champs it was $1.50. Lambs brought a total of $18,138.

The market beef sale grossed $77,589 for 53 steers. Jerry Ferko's grand champion Maine X weighing 1,315 lbs. was sold to Bonanza Restaurant, Somerset for $5.50 per lb. From Central City, Ferko's check amounted to $7,232.50.

Vicky King's reserve grand champion was bought by Dolan Chevrolet, Somerset, who paid $4.50 per lb. for the Chi-Angus X and a total of $5,625.

Kralls Continue To Dominate S.E. Hog Derby

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — In the three years the Southeast Pennsylvania 4-H Market Hog Derby has been in existance, Stacey and Jason Krall have either entered a champion or finished within the top three places.

This year, the brother-sister team from Cornwall has captured a one-two dominance of the months-long contest — Jason showed the overall grand champion market hog and Stacey showed the reserve grand champion overall.

The son and daughter of Linda and Glen Krall, who operated a family dairy farm in the southern end of Lebanon County, Jason and Stacey have managed to raise and show champion market hogs each year. The first two years, the youth had raised feeders they purchased from Kenneth Winebark, county extension agent who breeds and raises Hampshires on his Myerstown farmette.

The Krall siblings have excelled in the competition with Jason raising the overall champion during the derby's first year, Stacy raised the second year's overall champion and this year they took champion and reserve champion overall.

Jason's grand champion overall was also the grand champion on foot, which doesn't normally have to happen. It was the reserve champion carcass animal. It weighed in at 64 pounds and finished out at 255 pounds with a ninth place average 1.91 pounds per day gain. conformation was rated a 4, carcass weight was 187 pounds, with a 6.24-inch and .80-inch back fat, rated at 52.48 percent lean. It's lean gain was .8304 pounds per day.

Stacy's reserve champion overall was the reserve champion liveweight hog. It weighed in at 57 pounds and weighed out at 253 pounds for a 1.96 pounds-per-day gain. The carcass weighed out to 181 pounds with 1.1-inch back fat, a 5.91-inch loin eye and a pounds-lean-per-day gain of .6844.

Stacy's hog carcass was rated at 48.96 percent lean. Both carcasses were 31¼ -inches long.

Good genetics is as important as the techniques for raising a derby winner — this year, the Kralls won with purchased feeders from neighbor Johnny Risser, who has been raising and breeding market hogs for several years.

Risser, who had been using some of his grandfather's farmland which surrounds his parents' house to breed and raise swine, is a

State DHIA Receives Quality Award, Seeks New General Manager

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania DHIA has received another in a series of excellent quality control ratings for their testing laboratory, and the directors have appointed a selection committee that is in the process of receiving applications for the position of general manager.

Pennsylvania's testing laboratory has long been recognized as one of the best in the nation. The latest rating was 100 points out of a possible 100 points.

"You go into the rating process trying to do as good as possible," said Jim Garrity, acting general manager. "But a perfect score is very gratifying."

In mid-July, the board of directors accepted the resignation of Richard Barth as general manager of the state organization. Barth had been general manager for seven years. Therefore a new general manager needs to be found and a committee of board members, one

Prices are generally unchanged on light type fowl but sales are too few to report on heavy hens. Leghorn availability is at least adequate for next week's short slaughter schedules. Offerings of heavy hens are limited, however most processors are relying on contract birds to satisfy needs. Trade sentiment is mostly steady.

National Egg Market

Wednesday, Sept. 1, 1993

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE: Prices trended lower in some Midwest markets, otherwise prices were unchanged. The trade sentiment ranged steady to weak. Movement of cartoned eggs into retail channels was light to instances fairly good. Supplies were adequate to ample, mostly adequate to fully adequate. In the Central States, prices for all breaking stocks trended lower. Offerings were fully adequate to ample for current needs. Demand was light to fair. Most breakers assessed market conditions before commiting to additional product. The undertone was weak. In the Southeast, trading levels for light type hens were too thin to report prices. However, the trade sentiment was generally steady. Offerings were at least adequate. Demand was moderate with buyers unaggressive. Further processor sales cleared available inventories.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Thursday, Sept. 2, 1993

Trucklot buying interest was fair to fairly good and maybe a little better than an average Wednesday. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were in good balance with most trading reported at unchanged prices. Asking prices for next week deliveries trended higher. Some inquiries from major buyers for mid-month and late month planned retail features went unfilled. Line run breasts were adequate to cover a fairly good buying interest. A little extra product was offered at steady prices and slow to clear. Yellow skin leg quarters were well cleared to a good demand. Wings were available.

Prices trended lower. Trade sentiment was barely steady and cautious. Trading was moderate as lower prices attracted additional buying interest. Raw materials were readily available and most breakers bid lower for surplus offerings. Floor stocks easily satisfied current buyer interest.

OPINION

Wool Act And The True Facts

If several U.S. senators and representatives have their way in the upcoming days, the National Wool Act of 1954 may be no more.

This could create dire consequences on the many nationwide sheep producers who depend on the incentives from the bill to allow them to continue their business.

According to Pennslvania Sheep and Wool Growers President Joe Vogel, a registered Columbia sheep producer in Kempton, people are not getting the true facts about the Act.

The American Sheep Industry Association (ASI) indicates that the Act came into being as a result of a move to help protect sheep producers from a flood of wool following the lowering of trade restrictions after World War II. At the time, the U.S. was trying to prevent damaging markets with the beleaguered economy of Australia, hit hard by the war. Wool flooded into the U.S., dropping domestic prices drastically. Sheep producers knew they were in trouble, so they petitioned Congress. Congress sidestepped efforts to set up restrictions, and instead passed the Act.

The National Wool Act allows up to 70 percent of the total tariffs on imported wool and wool products to go to the program to provide incentive payments to wool and mohair producers, according to ASI. Payment is based on the percentage needed to bring the national average market price received by producers up to the support price determined annually by the USDA.

Nearly 70,000 wool producers receive program payments, ranging from very small to very large operations. It includes payment caps. Wool Act incentive payments to growers in 1992 were some of the highest in history — allowing many sheep producers to continue in business and provide a reliable, quality product to U.S. consumers.

There is no net cost to taxpayers to continue the program, since the money is collected from tariffs, according to ASI. In 1991, according to ASI, tariffs collected more than $401 million, bringing the lifetime earnings of this program to $7.4 billion. Total payments in 1991 were just more than $172 million.

The problem producers see is that instead of 70 percent of the total tariffs being funnelled to the incentive program, only about 30 percent are. The rest goes directly to the U.S. treasury, which many producers believe is unfair.

But if the Act is killed, and it could happen soon, the effects could be long-ranging and devastating. Local economies could suffer. Many producers would be forced to close up shop.

Vogel urges producers to get in touch with their U.S. senators, particularly Sen. Arlen Specter ((202) 224-4254) and Sen. Harris Wofford ((202) 224-6324), and let them know the National Wool Act must continue.

In a letter to Lancaster Farming, Vogel urges producers to tell representatives and legislators the "true story" about sheep and the U.S. sheep industry.

"Sheep and wool are the oldest industry known to man," he writes. "We therefore must do all we can to preserve it."

Farm Forum

Editor,

Recently I had the opportunity to review prices paid to dairy farmers since 1980. The figures clearly show the average dairy farmer has lost nearly $70,000 in gross income during the last twelve years by not keeping up with the milk price received in the early 80's. Can you imagine what this loss would be if you figured something for inflation? No wonder dairy farmers are having such a tough time.

On my farm we are logging and my wife has a part-time job; why should this be necessary?

Why is it that dairy farmers have had to pay all kinds of assessments for nearly ten years and yet we receive a lower price for milk today, than we did twelve years ago. It's time we as farmers wake up and do something.

Something else bothers me — who else receives a lower price today than they did in 1980?

Do our so-called farm leaders receive less wages than they did in 1981? It seems that some farm leaders always refer to school teachers, school administrators and about every other public official regarding how much their salary has increased since 1981. Instead of picking on the above mentioned people all the time, let's reveal how much of a salary is paid to the co-op leaders, both the managers and the board members.

Is it true that some of these people receive nearly $200,000 per year, paid for by dairy farmers? INCREDIBLE!

Let's not stop with milk coops like Eastern, Dairylea, and Atlantic; what about other farm organizations such as Farm Bureau, Farmers Union and now Pro Ag. What kind of salaries are paid in these organizations?

Everyone knows what teachers receive, but what about these other guys. Don't tell me it's not my business, it is because some of you are the people that's promoting

To Check Silage Corn Maturity

The quality of corn silage is determined largely by moisture and maturity at time of harvest.

How long it takes a crop to reach maturity is determined by heat units during the growing season and not by days since planting. The hotter the growing season, the faster the crop will mature.

Thus, hot weather shortens the amount of time we have to harvest corn and still capture its quality. This summer, we have had a lot of hot days and nights, and the corn is maturing very rapidly. The time required for it to move from a green succulent plant with soft milky kernels to a mature dried plant with fully dented hard kernels is considerably less than in cooler weather.

Check your fields now and be ready to chop. For optimum quality, kernels should be dented and the milk line should be about half way down the kernel.

To determine this, take an ear of corn and snap it in half. You will see the firm starch deposited in the outer part of the kernel while the milk will occupy the base of the kernel. This gives the appearance of a whitish line separating the two areas. As the kernels continue to mature, the milk line moves down the kernel.

By harvesting when the milk line is halfway down the kernel, the crop is near maturity and has accumulated about as much energy as it ever will. The kernels are not overly hard and the stalk still contains enough moisture to pack well and ferment properly.

For upright silos, aim for a moisture level of about 60 to 65 percent and 65 to 70 percent for bunker silos. Maintain a fairly coarse chop of about 3/8 inch blade setting so the effectiveness of the fiber is not destroyed.

To Not Let Animals Suffocate

Tunnel ventilation systems have become a popular way to help improve cow and broiler comfort during hot summer days.

It involves placing a large number of fans in one end of the barn to create a three to five miles per hour breeze and to have a rapid air exchange in the barn. To accomplish this, it is necessary to close all the air inlets along the side walls so all the air is pulled through inlets in the end of the barn opposite the fans.

This works very well when the fans are running. When the power fails, the barn may become very hot and stuffy in only a few minutes.

Thus, it is very important to have a way to provide cows and poultry with fresh air when power failures occur. This may involve using a standby generator, opening curtains, windows and doors, or letting cows out of the barn.

Always have someone on 24-hour standby to regularly check the barns and respond quickly to a power failure. These procedures are necessary whether you are at home or away from the farm.

To Reduce Egg Shell Breakage

Egg breakage reduces profits! Every broken egg is costing you at least four cents per egg.

William D. McKeen, University of Califorina Poultry Farm adviser, has identified the following factors that may contribute to excessive egg breakage:

- Damaged cages or collection trays.
- Excessive bird density in cages.
- Operation of egg collection equipment at speeds which are too fast.
- Failure to separate oversized eggs in flats.
- Excessive disturbance of birds during peak laying hours. Jobs such as manure clean out, spraying for mites, flies, etc. should be limited to afternoon hours when few eggs are present.
- Failure to carefully maintain and clean egg handling equipment.
- Increased body checks because of crowding in cages or extended day length.

Most of these factors are related to preventative maintenance. It takes a strong commitment to quality and pride in work in order to reduce egg breakage.

By reducing cracks by one percent, you are increasing profits by at least 10 cents per bird. For a 50,000-hen flock, this is $5,000 per year increased income.

Now is the time to manage for quality!

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

BEHIND THE 'BIG BANG'
September 5, 1993

Background Scripture
Genesis 1:1-25
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 40:21, 25, 26, 28-31

"In the beginning..." begins the Book of Genesis and the Bible itself. In fact, the term 'Genesis' means 'beginning.' In Genesis, we reach back as far as we can to point-zero in time.

Contemporary science tells us that the beginning was ten to twenty billion years ago. And the beginning, according to many scientists, was an instantaneous "Big Bang," the reverberations of which are still echoing through the universe.

If you throw a stone into a pool, you can see the rings of force that ripple from the point of contact between the stone and the water. Those rings grow ever larger, keep expanding at a geometric rate. In nature, those rings are never reversed, never get smaller and retreat into the single point from which they began. But, if I capture that event on my video camera and then run it on "rewind," I can do just that: I can see the rings grow smaller and return to the original point of impact.

AN EXPANDING UNIVERSE

One year before I was born, a scientist by the name of Edwin Hubble realized that wherever you look, the distant galazies are moving away from us like the rings that ripple on a pond disturbed by a stone. Using the telescopes and astronomical equipment of his day, he convinced most of the scientific community that ours is an expanding, not static, universe. Since Hubble's discovery, scientists have used computations to theoretically reverse the outward flow of the galaxies back to a moment in time when those forces were all contained in one great moment of power, giving rise to the generally-accepted Big-Bang, but not the Big Bang itself, let alone the moment before it. As soon as they try to look back behind that first second, they run into a door that they cannot open. Some of them suspect that it is God who stands behind that door; others refuse to make that assumption but are troubled with the necessity for looking for something, if not Someone, behind it.

BEHIND EVERY DOOR

In 1951, Pope Pius XII embraced the Big Bang theory as supportive of Christian beliefs. In fact, he suggested that, in light of these discoveries of science, it might be anticipated that "God were waiting behind every door opened by Science."

It may seem strange that the Pope and other Christians should look upon the Big Bang theory as supportive to Christian belief. After all, there is no place in Genesis where there is even a faint suggestion of a Big Bang. Yet, when we understand what Genesis is saying to us, the relationship between the Biblical saga and the scientific theory becomes very clear. What the writer of Genesis 1:1-25 is giving us is not an eyewitness account of the day of creation, but an explanation of that day's meaning: "In the beginning God..."

The Big Bang theory takes us back to the very beginning-plus-one-moment and Christians press back beyond that one moment and fine "In the beginning God..." We can see the Big Bang as the outward description of God creating "the heavens and the earth," spinning the galactic masses of gas and dust out into the universe like the ripples on a gigantic pond.

"And God saw that it was good."

HESS MILLS
PURINA
SUPERCOW™

You'll Soon See How We Named This Feed.

What would you call a milking ration that turns cows into more productive, more efficient "super" cows? We call it SUPERCOW.™

SUPERCOW is a highly palatable, high-energy blend of nuggets and pellets formulated to meet the demands of high production. In field tests, cows fed SUPERCOW produced about 6.7 pounds more milk per day per cow.

SUPERCOW also helps maintain a cow's body weight and condition after calving, which can improve her reproductive efficiency.

See for yourself with SUPERCOW. The name says it all.

FIELD TRIAL RESULTS
(Adjusted Days In Milk)

Beginning Production	53.3 lb/day
Ending Production	60.0 lb/day
Avg. Increase Per Cow	6.7 lb/day
Body Condition Score Improvement	+0.12 pts

20 % of cows in field data were colored breeds

Milk Market News

TOM JURCHAK
Penn State Cooperative Extension Agent for Lackawanna County

Free Fall

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Cheese prices were in a free fall for six weeks before finally getting the parachute open five weeks ago. Which only means they are still falling but not as fast. What we don't know is how far they are from the ground before they can go up again for another try.

From their peak price of $1.39 the end of May, block prices fell nearly 14 cents in six weeks and then added losses of four cents more in the last five weeks for a total of 18 cents in 11 weeks. The rate of decline has slowed considerably from an average of over two cents a week to less than one cent recently. However, USDA's Dairy Market News sounds like a broken record with the same report — "the cheese market is unsettled" — for the last five weeks. Sustained increases in milk production (June was up again one percent) and lower demand, have been given most often as the reason for the decline in cheese prices.

Inventories Up

If the reason for the 23 cent increase in cheese prices in March and April was inventory building, the handlers did a good job. The USDA report on cold storage holdings for June show an increase of 11 percent over May in commercial stocks of cheddar cheese and 17 percent over last June. In which case it may be another couple of months before demand increases enough to affect the price. This should happen in preparation for late fall and winter holiday sales along with the opening of schools that affect demand through subsidized lunches including powder, cheese and milk.

Milk Prices

The Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series dropped another 61 cents in July to $11.42 making a total drop of $1.10 in two months from its peak of $12.52 in May. With dry skim milk prices only steady to lower and inventories ample to fill current needs, the declines in cheese prices will mean further drops in the M-W price. If the lower cheese prices translate into a $1.80 drop in the M-W from its high of $12.52, it would mean another fall to $10.72 in the next two months. It probably won't go that low but at least the prediction that the milk prices set in May and June will be the highest for the year seems to be right. Those who guessed otherwise are changing their numbers. Any changes in national milk production due to the weather are not expected now until after the first of the new year.

Farm Prices

The lower cheese and M-W prices haven't quite hit the fan yet at the farm level in the checks for July milk. In fact the Weighted Average in Order 4 was up five cents from June to July and the Uniform Price in Order 36 was off only one cent. Order 2 showed a drop of 26 cents to the Uniform Price from the previous month. The principal reason was the peak in Class I prices in July from that M-W peak in May but August farm prices will begin to reflect the drops in the M-W price in June and July.

Producer profits from now on may well depend on crop production and winter forage feed available on the farm. Growing conditions vary widely in the northeast from disaster assistance situations to very normal crops. A lot will depend on the yield and quality of corn silage. If you got it, give thanks. Some who don't may have to give up.

Tioga Co. Correspondent

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga Co.) — In his final comments during the Northeast Championship Holstein Show, judge Robert Fitzsimmons of East Montpelier, Vt., said, "I knew there were good cows in northeastern Pennsylvania. I knew I was going to have a tough job ahead of me judging them. I like to see a sharp dairy cow, with a good udder. I wasn't disappointed."

While L & J Holsteins of Wellsboro, Ty-Ly-View Farm of Roaring Branch, and Esbern Farms of Mansfield consistently presented top cows in each of the classes entered, and indeed, walked away with the grand champion, reserve grand champion and junior grand champion awards respectively, Gor-Wood-D Holsteins presented stiff competition with his 20 entries and was named premier exhibitor and premier breeder during the event which took place Tuesday, August 24 at the Tioga County Fairgrounds.

Of the senior grand champion, C Penlow Irma Jethro, a senior 3-year-old owned by Paul Moyer of Ty-Ly-View Farm, Judge Fitzsimmons said he liked her sharpness, cleanness, and was strong through the udder. The cow also took senior champion and first in the senior 3-year-old class.

Of the senior reserve grand champion and senior reserve champion, L & J Thor Frank, another senior 3-year-old owned by Ida Jane Plance of L & J Holsteins, the judge said, "Although she's been milking a long time, she tracks out nicely."

When the judge also announced L & J Thor Frank's owner the winner of the best bred and owned by exhibitor award, Ida produced a grin and said, "This is what I came for. This is what makes it all worth while."

In the youth show, Charity Courtney of Esbern Farms led grand champion winner EsBern Blackstar Emy Lou of which the judge admitted to admiring "her openness and width of udder." Emy Lou, a senior 2-year-old, placed second and had the second best udder in her class.

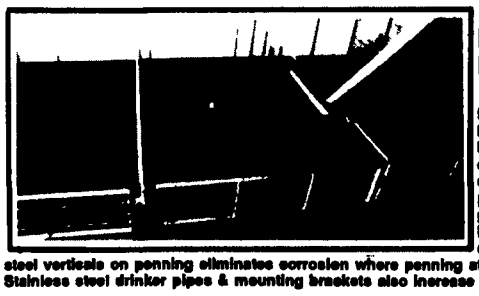
CONFINEMENT STALL

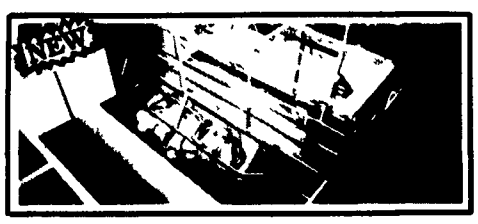
Developed recently in our R&D farm. Our goals were convenience, safety and durability. The low back and flat top rails are easy to reach over with no sharp edges. Stainless steel rear legs and front feet along with solid steel horizontal rods through punched uprights provide the strongest, most durable stall ever produced by Tri-County (21"-24" O.C. x 86").



NURSERY PENNING

Nursery penning has been improved by the use of an optional solid stainless steel panel on the front gates which keeps walkways clean. Stainless steel verticals on penning eliminates corrosion where penning attaches to the floor. Stainless steel drinker pipes & mounting brackets also increase durability.

PIG SAVER "DUTCH CRATE"



Developed through testing in our research farms, the goal was to develop a crate that nearly eliminates crushing, due to lay ons, unmatched durability and be easy to work around. All this has been achieved by a unique gravity flipnail that forces sows to lie down slowly and using stainless steel for rear doors and legs, proven horizontal and solid steel rod construction. All this at a reasonable cost. Crate also can be installed on an angle.

FINISHING PENNING

Optional stainless steel verticals and fasteners offer improved durability over other similar types of penning. Loop and flapper latch arrangement eliminates the use of drop pins. Stainless steel fence line feeders provide excellent durability and a minimum of waste.

Berks Holstein Picnic

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — The Berks County Holstein Club held their annual picnic at Vista Grande Farm, Fleetwood. The farm is owned and operated by Dave and Phoebe Bitter and family. The picnic was attended by approximately 280 people.

To start off the evening, everyone enjoyed a pig roast.

There was a dairy judging contest for anyone who wished to participate. The judging contest was officiated by John Howard. The overall high score was by Duane Stump, Bernville, who was also the winner in the junior division. Karen Dietrich of Bernville was the winner in the women's division. The winner of the men's division was Richard Troutman, Jr. of Richland.

John Howard was also the guest speaker for the evening. Mr. Howard serves on the National Holstein Board of Directors. The topics he spoke on included changes in the Rules and Regulations of the National Convention. He also spoke on finances, field operations, classifying rule changes and sketchless registrations.

Berks County Dairy Princess, Jennifer Grimes, did her dairy promotion skit and Justine Stoltzfus, Little Miss Dairy Princess, said a poem.

Duane Stump had the high score in the judging contest at the Berks County Holstein picnic.

Clarence Stauffer of Ephrata, Field Representative for the Holstein Association, spoke on the qualified herd book.

Erica Davis, Kutztown, who was the winner of the chain calf contest held last winter, spoke about the progress of the calf.

The evening was concluded with a slave auction. Thirteen Junior members donated their time and services to be auctioned off to raise money for their attendance to the 1995 National Holstein Convention to be held in Pittsburgh.

New Jersey To Hold Organic Fair

PENNINGTON, N.J. — New Jersey's annual celebration of organic food, farming and gardening will take place September 18, 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., in Pennington, New Jersey.

Featured speakers include leaders in the organic farming community, such as Trauger Groh, biodynamic farmer for 33 years and author of Farms of Tomorrow: Community Supported Farms, Farm Supported Communities; Mike McGrath, editor in chief, Organic Gardening Magazine; and Chuck Benbrook, former executive director, Board of Agriculture, National Academy of Sciences, who will lead an Organic Town Hall Meeting on the subject of pesticides and children.

The one-day event, organized by the Northeast Organic Farming Association of New Jersey (NOFA/NJ) will be held at the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association on Titus Mill Road off Route 31.

More than 45 seminars, demonstrations, and tours will run throughout the day. Classes for the farmer/gardener will cover such topics as: an introduction to organic growing, edible landscaping, urban gardening, lawn care, permaculture, and growing cover crops. Slated demonstrations include beekeeping, composting, starting a wormbox, hand tools, aquaculture methods, and using season extenders. Demonstrations in healthful cooking will also be featured.

Organic garden doctors will be on hand to diagnose garden problems and available for sale will be farm/garden supplies, such as topsoil/potting soil, fertilizers, farm tools, composting equipment and pest control products. Farm/garden supplies and equipment will be auctioned in the afternoon.

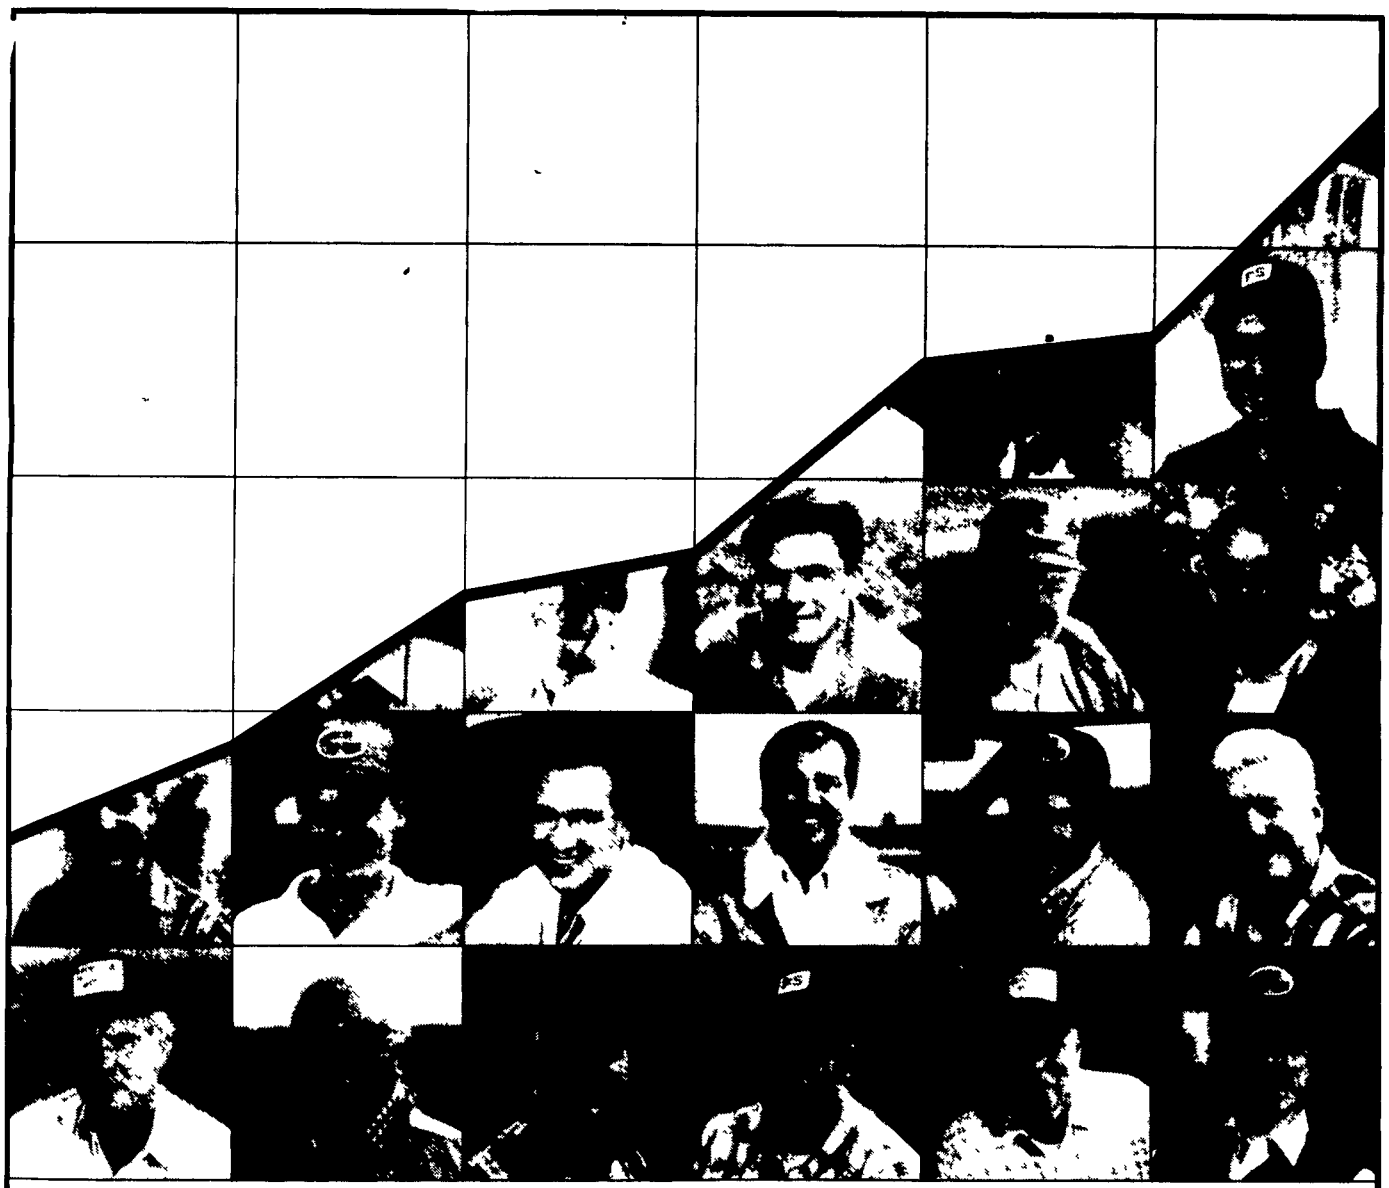
Fairgoers will be able to sample and buy locally grown organic foods and talk to New Jersey organic farmers. Among the many treats for the palate will be whole wheat bagels with fruit jams, whole wheat pizza, corn on the cob with herbed butter, vegetable ratatouille with fennel and masala, fresh peach short cakes, and much more.

For those interested in a day in the country, farm craft demonstrations include basket making, dried flowers, hand crafted brooms, wood turning, pottery, log furniture, dyeing and spinning. Entertainment for all ages includes story telling, live music, games and a contra dance at the end of the day. Games include the bean bug toss, potato putt, kite making, salad bar collage, butter dance, cakewalk, junior farmer's relay, and the farmers decathlon.

NOFA/NJ is the only organic farm certification organization in New Jersey, certifying food as "organic" in accordance with nationally recognized standards. NOFA/NJ also develops education and marketing programs for organic farmers in the State.

Co-sponsored by the Watershed Association, Rutgers Cooperative Extension, and the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, the Fair is supported by grants from USDA, the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation, The Fund for New Jersey, and the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

Admission is $4 for adults, $3 for senior citizens, $1 for children 3-15 and free under three. Volunteers are admitted free of charge. Volunteers are needed for setting up the day before the Fair and for working on the day of the fair. For more information, contact NOFA/NJ, 609-737-7001.



W-L measures success one grower at a time.

We could show you stacks of research data that demonstrate the benefits of planting W-L alfalfa seed, but the most important barometer of our success is the success of growers like you.

Growers have depended on W-L Research as a provider of superior alfalfa seed for over thirty years, and in that time W-L has developed seed well-known for its value. At W-L, "value" is defined as long-term yield, persistence, and quality. These characteristics of W-L varieties are the cornerstone of our success, and we continue to measure our success as we always have — one grower at a time.

Summertime & 4-H Dairy Projects

During the summer I spend more time working with 4-H youth than any other time during the year. It is one of the more enjoyable aspects of being a county agent.

Watching youth develop from 8-year-olds who are bug-eyed and a little scared at their first show to mature 19-year-olds who are quality show people and leaders in their 4-H clubs and other activities, is truly a rewarding experience.

How does this happen?

First, and most important, is the role volunteer leaders play in the process.

Having been a 4-H leader myself when I farmed, I know how much work and education is required to operate a successful program.

A leader must be to the 4-H member an educator, an idea person, a friend, a motivator, and organizer and, at times, a disciplinarian. Sort of sounds like a good mom or pop figure.

There is no question that volunteer leaders need a pat on the back from all of us. The reason for the success of the 4-H dairy and 4-H dairy goat programs in Chester County is the excellent leadership supplied by the volunteer leaders.

Secondly, you need projects that are fun to do and yet challenge the young people.

4-H meets this criteria with such a broad range of skills that there is a project to suit anyone's interest. In 4-H dairy, there are a variety of topics to learn — fitting and showing animals, record keeping, judging and dairy bowl teams, management skills, etc. Besides dairy projects, they can branch out to other projects such as photography, crafts, shooting sports, vet science, and a host of other activities.

Some of these skills are carried over to adult life for those choosing a career in agriculture, while others teach self-discipline, good work habits and the use of the mind to solve problems — traits essential for any career.

Encouraging young people to get on their feet and speak to their peers at a meeting is an experience that will aid them in future endeavors. Leadership has to be practiced to improve, and leaders need to motivate their members to keep trying to get better.

The results of the Chester County 4-H shows have been reported in this newspaper, and there will be an awards banquet in early November to honor members, not only on their show record, but on their project books and their cows production records. A few highlights of the summer are:

Association Believes Wool Act Must Continue For Sheep Producers To Survive

ments to growers in 1992 were some of the highest in history — allowing many sheep producers to continue in business and provide a reliable, quality product to U.S. consumers.

There is no net cost to taxpayers to continue the program, since the money is collected from tariffs, according to ASI. In 1991, according to ASI, tariffs collected more than $401 million, bringing the lifetime earnings of this program to $7.4 billion. Total payments in 1991 were just more than $172 million.

The income "stablizes entire rural communities," according to an ASI incentive program factsheet. More than 350,000 Americans in small communities exist on income generated by the sheep industry. The sheep industry contributes about $2 billion to the nation's gross national product.

The problem producers see is that instead of 70 percent of the total tariffs being funnelled to the incentive program, only about 30 percent are. The rest goes directly to the U.S. treasury, which many producers believe is unfair.

If the Wool Act were killed, according to ASI, the result would be lowered income to farmers and ranchers, reduced supplies of wool, increased prices to consumers, and lessened incentive for quality improvement in the wool industry. Many other related businesses, such as the textile industry, would also suffer, in addition to feed companies and farm-related businesses that depend on the wool producer.

According to Vogel, a registered Columbia Sheep producer, a great deal of the state's sheep producers — approximately 60 percent — are in the western part of the state. The picture is the same nationwide — but where the grazing costs are inexpensive in Pennsylvania, costs are a great deal higher out West, because of costs to producers as established by the Bureau of Land Management.

And if the attempts to kill the Act are successful, the nation's wool producers may be forced completely out of business. State producers could suffer, along with associated businesses, with another negative blow to the nation's troubled economy.

"There is a great deal of activity nationwide among all areas having anything to do with the wool industry to lobby for support in the Senate for the Wool Act," said Janet Mawhinney, a Dorset breeder who serves as legislative spokesperson for the state wool growers. "We believe that each of our senators from Pennsylvania will vote to support the Wool Act if it is brought up for a vote when the body returns to session on Sept 7."

In a letter to Lancaster Farming, Mawhinney wrote that U.S. Sen. Harris Wofford (D-Bryn Mawr) "wrote a very positive letter to the conference committee supporting the continuation of the act. The staff of Senator Specter's office have assured me on more than one occasion that he supports the Wool Act."

Mawhinney wrote that the association needs "calls, letters, faxes to each of their offices requesting their vote to support the Act in whatever form in may be brought up on the Senate floor." Mawhinney urges sheep producers to contact Sen. Arlen Specter at (202) 224-4254 or Sen. Harris Wofford at (202) 224-6324.

It's been dry here especially in July and to date in August. Irrigation has helped to make fields look very good. Plots are excellent and we are looking forward to a super set of Field Days. Please come.

Delaware Valley College Shows

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — A 5-year-old Holstein owned by Delaware Valley College was named supreme dairy cow Wednesday at the Allentown Fair, while a Jersey bull owned by Mildred Seeds, of Hill-Top Farm, Downingtown, was named supreme dairy bull of the show.

The show was judged by Steve Neely, manager of sire procurement at Sire Power Inc., Tunkhannock.

Delaware Valley College is a traditional exhibitor at the fair, with dairy science students exhibiting some of the college's animals. The large framed Holstein showed the most overall balance, strength in legs and feet and correctness in mammary system, according to Neely.

To win the title, Seeds showed her Jersey bull calf to beat out a Brown Swiss calf shown by Jonathon Sterner, and a Holstein yearling calf shown by Steven Dietrich.

Seeds, who showed last year's supreme champion cow, is a well-known Jersey breeder using her Top-O-Hill Farm name as a registration prefix. She is also known for her years of work encouraging and enabling youth to participate in dairy shows, and learn how to care, handle and exhibit dairy animals.

Jonathon Sterner and sister Katie Sterner, were first year exhibitors at the Allentown Fair, accoridng to show officials.

A total of six new exhibitors were added to the lineup of annual exhibitors, according to show officials, mostly adding some animals to the colored breed shows.

New to the show, Lizzie Moser showed the only Milking Shorthorn, an intermediate calf, to win the grand championship of that breed. She also entered animals which finished in at least the top three of a class in the Holstein and Guernsey breeds.

Tarik Gaffney and Christine Michalik showed Jerseys. Others, whose animals didn't fare well in the showring, also participated in the showmanship and fitting contests, such as Katie Harwick and Michalik and Jolene Compagnone.

In the 4-H fitting show, first year champion was Katie Harwick, followed by Christine Michalik.

In the intermediate-age level, Tarik Gaffney was top fitter, followed by Karen Wolfgang and Lizzie Moser.

Among the senior aged 4-H youth, Amy Plummer was the top fitter, while Shannon Semmel and Katie Sterner followed.

In 4-H showmanship, Christine Michalik was first among the first year contestants, followed by Katie Harwick.

In the intermediate age group, Tarik Gaffney was the top showman, followed by Karen Wolfgang.

In the senior age showmanship contest, Plummer was first, followed by Katie Sterner and Jonathon Sterner.

The Allentown dairy show also holds an FFA division competition, although entries are light. Steven Dietrich was both the top FFA showman and fitter. Dietrich also swept the other FFA competition with his five Holsteins entered as both open and FFA show contenders.

In the Ayrshire breed open show, Delaware Valley College showed the grand champion, while Seth Wolfgang showed the reserve grand champion and the reserve junior champion. Heath Miller showed the junior champion.

In the Guernsey breed, Carl Miller showed the senior champions and the grand and reserve grand champion animals. Karen Wolfgang showed the junior and reserve junior Guernseys.

Are your wheat profits getting lost at the mill?

You've just harvested your wheat crop and the yields look pretty good. Looks like you'll even make enough to pay your taxes. Then you haul the grain to the mill. It's weighed. And you find out your test weights are under 58 lb/bu.

So instead of getting full profit, you lose 8¢ for every bushel you produce. Even more if your test weights are substantially under 58 lb/bu. So much for paying off the taxes.

Maximize your profits with unmatched test weights.

With Hoffman 89, you'll get every penny from your wheat crop. In three-year trials conducted by Penn State and the University of Maryland, Hoffman 89 weighed in with the top test weight across all locations.

Best of all, it produced test weights of 58 lb/bu or more every single time, topping the mean test weight by at least 4%.

Get superior test weights without sacrificing yield.

But superior test weights are only half the story with Hoffman 89. You'll also get top-end yields that will have you smiling all the way to the bank.

Its 98 bu/A average, for example, produced a 5% advantage over the mean yield of 92.9 bu/A in Lancaster County trials. At $3.00 per bushel, you'd make $15.30 more per acre using Hoffman 89.

Winter hardiness boosts plant population.

Hoffman 89 features excellent winter hardiness to improve percent stand come spring. It also tillers better than many varieties to increase overall plant population. Superior standability and Powdery Mildew tolerance ensure maximum yield potential for added profitability.

Stop losing your profits at the mill.

Tired of losing your profits at the mill? Then call your local Hoffman sales representative. Or call Hoffman Seeds at 1-800-776-7929. We'll show you how to get the most from your wheat crop using Hoffman 89.

Rocky Acres Farm Becomes Swine Market Champion At Allentown

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — It was a championship 22 years in the making, but Rocky Acres, which includes sons Stephen, Tim, and mother and father Harlan and Barbara, finally clinched a market swine championship at the Allentown Fair on Wednesday.

In 60-head-of-hogs competition, it was a 260-pound Yorkshire cross gilt from the heavyweight class that won out over all the other weight divisions during the market championship portion of the show.

"We didn't expect this at all," said Tim Wessner, of Rocky Acres, based in New Tripoli. "This is the first time we got the market banner at Allentown."

The family has been showing at the fair since 1971, according to Harlan. Rocky Acres maintains at least 80 sows in a farrowing operation, divided up mostly between Landrace and Poland China breeds.

According to Tim, it was brother Stephen, 18, a county 4-H member, who needed another project hog for a Northwestern FFA project. Stephen picked the Yorkshire, which the judge liked for its leanness, despite its weight.

The hog looked very sound, very meaty, very good from the top down, according to show judge Charles Hall, of Rattlesnake Mountain Farms based in Julian, Centre County. The Yorkshire Co-Op president, who also raises Hampshires, indicated to the exhibitors that he didn't want to pick one nearing 260 pounds, but "if that's the pig, that's the pig," he said. "If it's the leanest, I'll go with that."

For the supreme champion showman Amy Wehr, the key to winning was to use a combination of baby oil and water to keep the hog clean and shining for the show. She won against tough senior competition, the largest class on Wednesday.

In the end, Amy also swept championship showman and fitter with her purebred Hampshire out of the intermediate class. Amy, 13, Orefield, is the daughter of Elmer and Dolores Wehr. This is Amy's first show championship. She's been showing at the fair for six years.

FFA champion showman was Richard Kerper, 18, son of Richard and Kay Kerper, Fleetwood. This is the first time he has shown hogs at the Allentown Fair. He is a member of the Oley Valley FFA.

The breed champion show was held Thursday. Supreme champion gilt was awarded to Laura Lazarus for her Yorkshire. Supreme champion boar was awarded to Scott Lazarus with his Chester White.

At the show, there were a total of 60 market hogs (296 overall, including the breed show Thursday), and 31 exhibitors.

Following is a list of show placings.

Tree Farm Will Host

YORK SPRINGS (Adams Co.) — Tree Farmers Arthur and Mary Wolfe will host visitors at their Tree Farm in Adams County on September 11.

Tours of the property, educational seminars (topics to include tree planting, timber marketing, stream improvement, and woodlot management), exhibitors, and lunch will be part of the all-day program.

The Wolfes purchased their 118-acre farm after Arthur retired from teaching in 1983. They implemented a conservation plan that was instrumental in transforming the farm that had been idle for more than a decade into an award-winning showcase. The Wolfes put fields back into production after installing drain tile, constructing sod waterways, and diversion ditches.

The 43-acre woodlot was also put under management and 10 additional acres were planted in pine, walnut, and Christmas trees. In 1984, the Wolfes joined the Glatfelter Tree Farm Family and their property became a certified Tree Farm. Their efforts to manage their woodlot to its highest potential have included improvement cuts and thinnings on 31 acres.

Arthur and Mary were recognized for their achievements in 1991 with the Pennsylvania Outstanding Tree Farmer Award and in 1992 with the Maurice K. Goddard Award for Outstanding Forest Management. The farm has been in Mrs. Wolfe's family for two centuries and is designated a Bicentennial Farm by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

The Wolfes have recently purchased the adjacent 119-acre farm. Work on improving the fields has already begun. The six-acre woodlot will be put under management and additional acres will be planted.

The September 11 program at the Wolfe's Tree Farm is open to the public. A registration fee of $5 per person will be charged to cover cost of lunch.

For information and registration, contact Scott Kurtzman, The Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company, Main Street, Spring Grove, PA 17362, (717) 225-4711.

End of the field. Flick the Dynashift lever up to "D". Again, no lurches or jerks. Just smooth, positive acceleration.

Tour Looks At The Whole Picture

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Decisions made by U.S. sheep producers ultimately affect domestic and international buyers, said participants of the recent American Sheep Industry Association Tall Timber Tour.

End-users such as fashion designers, industrial manufacturers, wool buyers, and legislative representatives spent two-and-a half days interacting with producers and addressing issues confronting the wool industry. Group members said they gained a new perspective of the sheep industry as they took a look at the whole picture from start to finish.

"Learning the other person's perspective is helpful in building coalitions within an industry," said Joe Helle, Wool Council chair. "Sheep producers also were given the opportunity to hear the concerns of the wool buyer and end-user. This type of interchange is beneficial to the industry as a whole."

Participants experienced a sheep-shearing demonstration, saw shorn wool being classed and skirted, sheep grazing on public lands, and enjoyed a delectable lamb barbecue. Extensive group discussions were held as participants voiced concerns and debated crucial issues facing the wool industry.

Among topics of importance were the North American Free Trade Agreement, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, polypropylene contamination, and new industrial uses for wool. "Opinions and perceptions were as diverse as the group itself," said Gene Brune, American Sheep Industry president. "These sessions allowed the group of brainstorm ideas that would enhance the industry and ultimately their livelihood."

Silage Making Window Narrows In Hot Weather

For several months, I have used this column to show how DHIA data can be use to make more informed herd management decisions. This week I'm taking a break from the numbers to focus on some other timely topics.

The quality of corn silage is determined largely by moisture and maturity at time of harvest. How long it takes a crop to reach maturity is determined not so much by days since planting, but more by the heat units that existed during the growing season. In other words, the hotter the growing season, the faster the crop will mature.

How does this relate to harvesting corn for silage? Basically, hot weather shortens the amount of time we have to harvest the crop and still maintain its quality. We have had a lot of hot days and hot nights in recent weeks, and corn has matured very rapidly. The time required for it to pass from a green succulent stalk with soft milky kernels to a mature dry stalk with fully dented, hard glazed kernels is considerably less in hot weather than in cool weather. In cooler weather, it seems like it can take forever for the crop to mature and dry down enough to ensile.

For optimum quality, the kernels should be dented and the milk line should be about halfway down the kernel. At this stage, the crop is near maturity and has accumulated about as much energy as it ever will. The kernels are not overly hard and the stalk should contain enough moisture for good packing and for good fermentation.

For upright silos, aim for a moisture content of about 60-65%. For bunker silos the ideal range is about 65-70% moisture. Maintain a fairly coarse chop so as not to destroy the effectiveness of the fiber in the crop. If moisture levels are less than 60% a finer chop may be necessary for good packing, for good fermentation, and for improved digestibility.

Check your corn fields now and be ready to chop when the crop is at optimum maturity. If your silage corn has become too mature and too dry, you may want to harvest it as grain and chop other fields, either yours or your neighbors, for silage. As you are checking corn fields also check your grain fields, especially the centers of the fields, to see if hot weather has adversely affected their pollination. The best way to salvage a poorly pollinated field is to ensile it, in which case, you may want to harvest your silage corn for grain.

Fields that are drying down rapidly and not earing out well due to drought stress might be better harvested as silage rather than as grain. Silage from these drought stressed fields might have elevated levels of nitrates. Testing for nitrates will help you utilize this silage to best advantage in your feeding program.

Don't Let Cows Suffocate

Tunnel ventilation systems have become a popular way to help improve cow comfort during the hot days of summer. It involved putting a lot of fans in one end of the barn to create a comfortable 3-5 mph breeze and to have a rapid exchange of air in the barn. To accomplish this, it is necessary to close all air inlets along the side walls so all the air is pulled in the end of the barn opposite the fans.

This works quite well — when the fans are running. When the power fails (electrical or diesel) the barn can become very hot and stuffy in only a few minutes. Thus, it is important to have a way to provide cows with fresh air when power failures occur. This may involve: 1.) using a stand-by generator, 2.) opening windows and doors or 3.) letting cows out of the barn. And, these emergency procedures are necessary whether you are at home or away from the farm.

Chopping Bedding— A Potential Fire Hazard

One easy way to bed cow stalls is to use a chopper to chop and blow bedding (straw, paper, etc.) into the stalls. If the bedding is dry, this can be a dusty process. All that is required to create a barn fire in this situation is a spark from the engine's ignition system, a spark created by foreign objects accidentally going through the chopper, or by dust or fuel contacting a hot manifold.

To reduce these risks, chop the bedding in a safe location and haul the chopped material to the stable. The chopped material will be difficult to handle because it is so light and fluffy; baling or bagging the material makes it easier to handle. To reduce the dust, dampen the material as it is being chopped. Damp bedding is very difficult to chop. If the wetting is done at time of chopping, the bedding will not have time to absorb much moisture before being chopped and chopping will be easier. Always have a functional fire extinguisher on the chopper and be sure everyone knows how to use it. Another alternative is to buy paper already chopped.

Bison Seminar

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — The Pennsylvania Bison (Buffalo) Association is having a Seminar on Saturday, Sept. 11 at the Holiday Inn of Lancaster at Pa. Turnpike exit #21.

The morning speaker will be a bison manager from the west and the afternoon speaker will be Clyde S. Card, D.V.M., Ph.D and P.B.A. member from the Pa. Dept. of Agriculture, who will speak on bison health.

There will be a general membership meeting following this session, and then an historical house tour in the area.

Interested poeple are encouraged to attend to learn about this new industry in the state. The $20 non-member fee includes a coffee break and a bison meat luncheon. Reservations are requested at (412) 658-4082.

The Pennsylvania Bison Association was organized in 1990 and now has 85 members, mostly from Pennsylvania, but also some from the surrounding states. Bison ranches are beginning to be a familiar sight in the Pennsylvania hillsides, since Bison are being raised for their low fat and low cholesterol meat. Some dairy farmers are also starting to raise Bison.

For more information contact Margery Kutney, (717) 965-2237.

Jeremy Dobbin, Halifax, exhibited the champion market lamb, which sold for $160 to Fox's Markets.

Kralls Continue To Dominate S.E. Hog Derby

graduate of the derby and a recipient of a scholarship also offered through the hog derby program.

Risser also bred the medium weight champion raised and shown by Kevin Pfautz, with a 14th placing overall.

Risser got his experience raising and breeding swine through family support, the county 4-H program, and through self motivation. Winebark said the Risser is an example of the success of the youth education livestock programs.

In fact, it was Winebark and several other county extension agents, such as Lancaster County's Chet Hughes, who founded the hog derby.

The initial concept continues today. It is to provide the youth with a competitive, but mostly educational, program that builds an understanding of what it takes to raise hogs for the real market, not just for a club sale.

Using the same evaluation formulas and indexes that were developed by the National Pork Producers, the youth have several months to raise a market hog and record the process.

The hogs are first weighed during the second week of May to get the starting dimensions.

In mid-August, the youth who continue to participate bring a hog back for weighing off. Then their animals undergo a live judging. Animals which have not reached a 220-pound minimum weight are not ranked.

The reason for the weight cutoff is linked to the educational purpose of the program — to learn how to produce for the market. Current market demand is for a lean, long, large-loin eye carcass coming from a hog with a live weight of around 240 pounds.

After the live judging, the animals are taken to Stoltzfuses Meat Market, slaughtered and the carcasses evaluated by Dr. Ed Mills, Penn State University meat scientist, for backfat thickness, size of the loin eye, length of carcass, etc. Similar to the weight restrictions, carcasses which had too much fat were disqualified.

During the live evaluation, as an educational tool, the animals are also given an ultrasound evaluation to determine back fat and lean muscle conditions. This information is then used for comparison to the carcass evaluations.

Overall, the animals are checked for pre-weight, show weight, days on test, pounds gain-per-day, conformation score, carcass weight, carcass length, loin eye area, back fat, percent lean, and pounds lean-gain-per-day. A final index is computed and the entries ranked.

There were 54 entries with 42 hogs being finished out to competition. Of those, 16 failed to make show weight of 220 pounds, 17 were disqualified for having too much fat, and one was disqualified because the quality of the meat was poor.

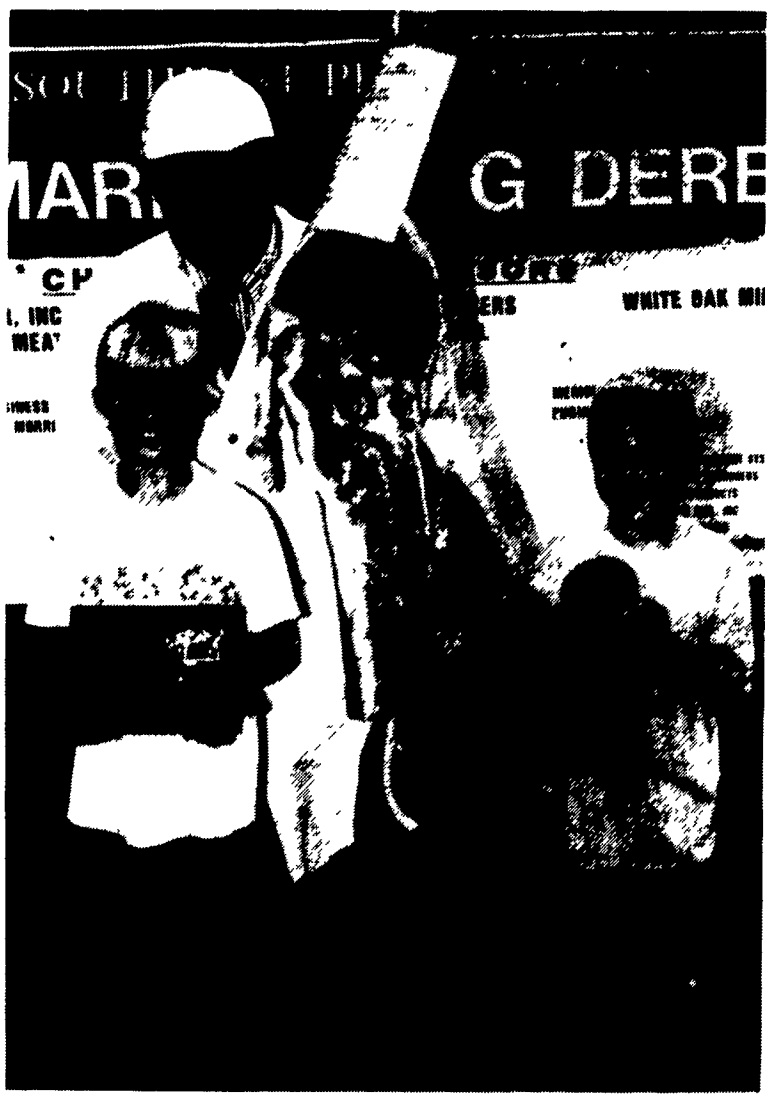
This year there were two recipients of the derby's $250 scholarship that is awarded to an outstanding participant and points awarded for the answers given on an application.

Dan Atkins, of Lebanon, and Roxanne Kirst, of Fredericksburg, were both named recipients of the scholarship. The terms of the scholarship are such that the money is to be used for education. but not necessarily collegiate.

Atkins intends to attend PSU Berks Campus for his freshman year, and then pursue a degree in animal science at Main Campus.

He is in partnership with his sisters and cousins in raising pigs out of four sows. By breeding the sows and raising the young, the youth have cooperated in producing their own show animals for the state Farm Show, the county fair, the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, and the hog derby.

From the left, John Risser, who bred the grand champion overall and the reserve grand champion overall market hogs, stands with Stacey Krall, who raised the reserve champion, Dr. Ed Mills, Penn State University meat scientist who oversaw the carcass evaluation and education portion of the S.E. Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby, and Jason Krall, who raised the grand champion overall market hog.



Janine Winebark holds her plaque recognizing her grand champion market hog carcass, while brother Brandon holds the rosette. Dr. Ed Mills, Penn State University meat scientist, stands behind.

In his application, Atkins said he is interested in being involved in a farrow-to-finish operation because it allows the operator to be involved in "all aspects of the industry, from genetics to marketing."

He started as a 9-year-old raising two market hogs in the county 4-H livestock club and over the years has shown at the county fair eight times, at the club winter roundup eight times, at the state Farm Show seven years, at KILE six years, the Eastern National Livestock Exposition four years and every year of the derby.

He has also served as president and president of his 4-H swine club, vice president of his beef club, served as co-chairman for three years out of four serving on the county barn crew subcommittee of the 4-H county fair committee, and served as co-coach of the county Pork Bowl team.

He also was a member of the county pork bowl team for six years winning the championship five times.

He is also a member of the county 4-H sheep club, in addition to wrestling for his high school, being involved with church, FFA, the school volleyball team and other volleyball leagues.

The other recipient, Roxanne Kirst said in her application that she inteds to attend Berks Campus for two years and then transfer to Main Campus to pursue a degree in food science.

A nine-year member of 4-H, Kirst is a member of the county swine and beef clubs, and served as secretary of both, was on the championship 1991 Pork Bowl team, and organized beef and pork promotions at the Dutchway Markets in Schaefferstown and Myerstown.

Kirst was raised on a hog-finishing operation and grew up helping and learning how to raise swine.

The senior class president, student council representative, member of the National Honor Society, member of the school field hockey and gymnastic teams and varsity club and yearbook staff, Kirst is also involved as a Sunday school teacher, and works at the Lebanon Dairy Queen-West.

The derby itself has several winners, in addition to the overall champions.

Sarah Boyd showed the third place overall champion with a 33-inch, 50.52-percent lean, 186-pound carcass, with a 6.24-inch loin eye, and 1 inch of backfat.

Janine Winebark, daughter of Ken and Janet, showed the grand champion carcass hog of the derby. It weighed in a 51 pounds, weighed off at 230 pounds and was 54.85 percent lean.

Winebark's hog's 32-inch long, 165-pound carcass had a 5.78 loin eye with .60-inch backfat. It was also the reserve champion mediumweight hog of the live show.

Kyle Ward entered the program for the first time raising his own derby hog from his own 4-H hog breeding project based on two bred Yorkshire gilts he purchased at the Farm Show in January from Leon Arnold, of Rexmont, well known Yorkshire breeder.

Ward's entry was the reserve champion for rate of gain, but was disqualified because it was too fat, coming in with 1.41-inches of backfat and a 43.96 percent lean rating.

Mark Simmon showed the champion for rate of gain, but his too was disqualified because of excessive fat, with 1.90 inches of back fat.

The lightweight champion was shown by Adam Greider, while Dan Atkins showed the reserve champion lightweight hog.

Dr. Ed Mills, Penn State University meat scientist, demonstrates how to read and interpret a grid used to measure the surface area of a pork loin eye. Dots on the grid correlate to a specific number of square inches. The transparent grid is place over the surface of the loin eye and the number of dots included are counted and the corresponding square inch measurement is found.

Sheep Industry Boosts Marketing In Budget

DENVER, Colo. — Directors of the American Sheep Industry (ASI) Association boosted lamb and wool marketing in the 1993-1994 budget, passed during the annual summer meeting in Rapid City, S.D.

Directors passed an $8.5 million budget, including $2.86 million for lamb-marketing programs and $1.63 million for wool marketing. The lamb budget pumps up funding in the lamb area in retail and foodservice areas where marketing studies have identified the greatest potential for lamb sale. In the wool area, additional funding will help support successful international efforts.

Also funded were activities in production, research and education, producer communications and public relations, and resource management work. The board stressed its commitment to continuing support of public information on the industry and to image enhancement through all areas of association work.

Ten percent of the total promotional budget, about $776,000, will be returned to state associations in all 50 states for state promotion, education and communication programs.

Funding in the government-affairs area was approved at $240,000, the amount proportionate to the dues paid to ASI by state affiliates.

The board also approved the following actions:

- Gave official support to the forage-fee formula for grazing fees developed by the Western Livestock Producers Alliance, a formula reflected in Senate Bill 1326 introduced recently by Sens. Ben Nighthorse Campbell (D-CO) and Malcolm Wallop (R-WY).
- Summer meetings to be held in Madison, Wis., in 1995; San Angelo, Texas, in 1996; and Hershey, Pa., in 1997.
- Regional nominations to the executive board were Norm Braun of Michigan for a second term in Region 1.
- Change in the name of the association publication from "National Wool Grower" to "National Lamb & Wool Grower."

16-Horse Hitch At Harvest Fair

SCHAEFFERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — Schaefferstown's 23rd annual Horse Plowing Contest begins at 10 a.m. on Saturday, September 11. The annual Horse Parade begins Sunday, September 12 at 12:30 p.m. followed by the horse pull.

The 16-horse hitch will be demonstrated both days pulling a large, heavy disc to till the freshly plowed limestone soil on the Alexander Schaeffer Farm. Oxen will plow and there will be a multi-oxen hitch pulling a covered wagon.

The early Swiss settlers in this area were interested in soil good enough to yield good bread. In the year 1737, Durs Thommen, from Neiderdorf, Switzerland, writing to Basel, Switzerland from the Schaeffer Farm said, "The plowing is very good, with two horses one man can plow one 'great acre' in one day." Some immigrants said you could not get good bread from the soils in North Carolina but that Lebanon County soils yielded good bread.

A harvest of pies, traditional foods from the dutch kitchen, famous Krall sausage sandwiches, freshly pressed apple cider, apple butter making, samples from the numerous cooking demonstrations in the farm house, summer kitchen, and surrounding grounds will entice the visitors. Roasted corn meal will be available for cooking mush and a number of recipes will be available.

Open to visitors will be the unique Schaeffer House, circa 1754, with its distilling fireplace and massive 1771 bake oven. The log house over the spring, the new summer kitchen, the blacksmith shop, gift shoppe, dry house, smoke house, and the barn with its antique farm implements are other interesting sites to see. The garden and orchard may be viewed in their original 18th century locations. Wagon and train rides will be provided.

The Harvest Exhibit will show prize-winning local fruits and vegetables, the Cider Press will be pressing apples, the unique ring-power will drive an antique threshing machine, the 100-year-old Frich sawmill will saw logs, and there will be a log pulling demonstration.

John Hickernell, a folk-informant and native of Schaefferstown , will be on hand. Robert Bucher will be available to discuss the Swiss origin of our Pennsylvania barns and houses, to provide literature on these subjects, and to tell of new discoveries made recently in the Schaefferstown area.

There will be crafts both days and entertainment on Saturday afternoon by folk singer Linda Russell and entertainment Sunday afternoon by Ellen Kepper, Separate Realty.

Admission is $2.50 for adults and children under 12 are free. Parking is free. Historic Schaefferstown is located north of Lancaster at the intersection of Routes 501 and 897.

Five horses, pull a Sulky plow. At the Harvest Fair, one class of oxen and four classes of horses will plow on September 11.

Somerset Livestock Winners Named

The county bred champion of Amanda Korns, Hyndman, brought her $4,188, at $4 per lb., while the county bred reserve champion of Angela Livengood brought $1,840.50.

With champions the 1993 beef sale averaged $1.21. Without champions the sale average was $1.05. In 1992 the grand champion sold for $3.50; the average, $2.60.

A hundred and forty swine were auctioned for a total sum of $43,257.

Jillian Ickes, Rockwood, saw her grand champion go to First Philson Bank, Berlin for $1,098, at $4.50 per lb. The York X weighed 250 lbs.

The reserve grand champion of Matthew Pletcher, Rockwood was sold for $3.50 per lb. to Riverside and BiLo Markets for a total of $812.

Giant Eagle, Somerset paid $2.50 per lb. for the group champion to give Mandy Decker of Garrett $525. Dolan Chevy paid $334.50 for the other group champ of Kami Hillegass.

The sale average with the champions was $1.39. Without the champs it dropped a mere four cents to $1.35 which indicates consistently good per pound prices throughout the swine sale.

In 1992 both swine champions brought $3.75 per lb.

A.J. Walker, of Walker Farm Service, Somerset, well-known for his great support of the Junior Livestock Sale, as in many times past, was again the premier buyer. Walker spent $11,662.65 on the market animals sold by the local 4-H and FFA members.

And the generosity of the buyers boded well for seven local volunteer fire departments — Sipesville, Somerset, Meyersdale, Salisbury, Rockwood, New Centerville and Berlin — all of whom received donated animals.

Rather than keeping the county bred steer it purchased, Hoss's donated it to the Children's Aid Home, Somerset.

Other recipients were a missionary, the Area Agency On Aging, Somerset Co. Boy Scouts, 4-H Clubs and a Historical Society.

Six auctioneers shared the sale responsibilities this year; Betty Lou Svonavec, Scott Mostoller, Kermit Stahl, Mike Knepper, Reed Luce and Bill Arnold.

Swine, steer and sheep show results are as follows:

The Somerset Co. Fair grand champion lamb was sold to Ken Gibson for the Riverside and BiLo Markets. From left, sisters Megan, Amy and Lindsay Schmuck, seller.

The Somerset Co. Fair reserve champion lamb of Luke Svonavec, right, was bought by John Tressler for Tressler's Ashland, Confluence.

Binkley-Hurst, Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Hold Field Day

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Several hundred farmers attended an all-day educational field day at the Lititz headquarters of Binkley and Hurst Bros. Inc., a farm equipment dealer.

The event free to the public was jointly sponsored by Binkley and Hurst and Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, of Ephrata.

Equipment technicians for Binkley and Hurst and representatives of manufacturers demonstrated the use of some forage harvesters, rock pickers and other equipment and implements.

Jon Stutzman, agronomist with Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, was on hand to explain the differences in trial plots that Brubaker and Binkley and Hurst had conducted in cooperation with representatives of 10 seed companies.

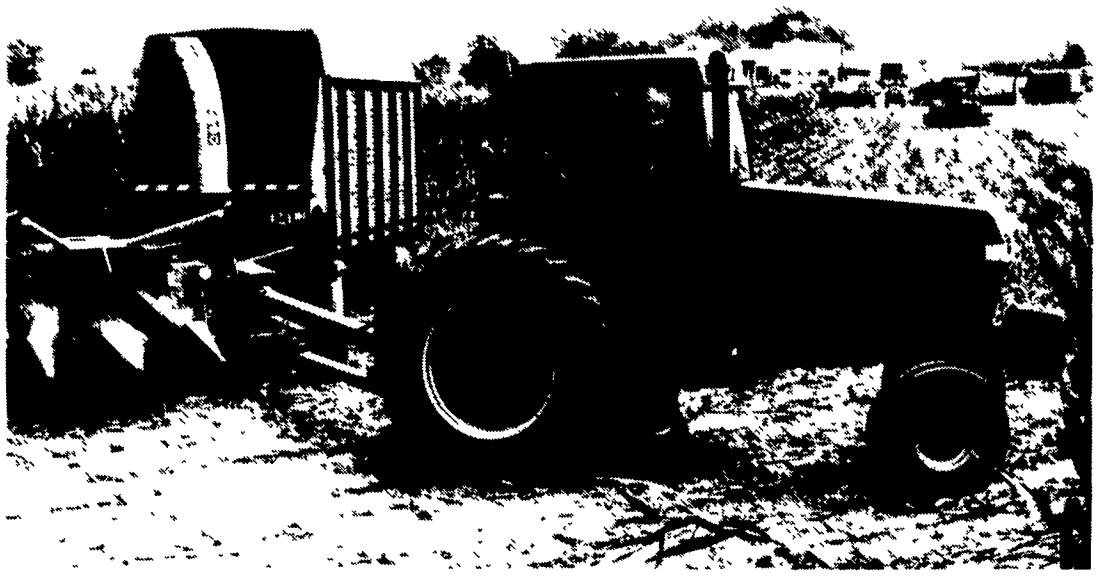
Stutzman showed the difference in apparent effectiveness of using different pesticides, and also no pesticides, in controlling rootworm damage.

Using a soil compaction tester, and having dug a three-foot trench into the field, Stutzman demonstrated the effects of compaction and how it varies in a field. The trench revealed the level of the compacted hardpan, which can form a water barrier and restrict root growth, as a result of working the field when it was wet.

Representatives of seed companies were also on hand to talk about their products.

Jon Stutzman points to evidence of corn rootworm damage early in the year that was apparent stopped in time for the plant's roots to recover.

Jon Stutzman, agronomist for Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, discusses corn rootworm damage and the apparent effects of different pesticide applications with a few of the several hundred people who attended the field day event sponsored by Brubaker and Binkley and Hurst Bros.



This tractor and forage harvester are being test driven through this Binkley and Hurst Bros. Inc. corn field across from the company's sales and service operation in Lititz.

State DHIA Receives Quality Award, Seeks New General Manager

from each district, has been named to complete this process. The committee members are: Bill Jackson, chair; George Cudoc; John Castrogiovanni; Lane Sollenberger, and Dale Hoover.

The new general manager will be responsible to the Pennsylvania DHIA directors for leadership and direction of the total DHIA program. According to officials, the position will be held totally within the state DHIA organization and not tied into Penn State's employee system as in the past.

While the organization has come under strong public scrutiny in the last several years, the outcome has left the organization quite strong in the eyes of many dairymen and agribusiness officials. Unbundled pricing for processing, electronic barn sheets, and lap top data entry, are just a few of the new items made available to the members in the last year.

The staff members who have kept the operation working on a day-to-day basis have been called the "best group of employees you could ask for." Turn-over of supervisors in the field has decreased, and volunteer board members have worked hard to bring control of the organization back to the grass roots level. If present plans hold, by the begining of next year, the state will be divided into smaller districts with additional representation on the board and a resolution system that will facilitate the process for local opinions to become part of the state and national operations.

In addition, the strict cost controls that have been placed on the operation of the Pennsylvania DRCP has caused financial institution officials to give the association high ratings. The long-range business plans and the yearly budget projections initiated by Barth continue to be useful in the overall successful operation of the business.

Anyone who would like to apply for the general manager's position or receive a complete position description is invited to send a resume or request to the: Seareh Committee; Bill Jackson, chairman; Pennsylvania DHIA; 1318 West College Ave.; State College, PA 16801. The position discription is also available by calling (814) 865-3917. Deadline for applications is November 1, 1993.

Quality Deep At Central Championship Show

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — There's good quality all the way through. That's what judge Credin Corman, a dairyman from Carlisle, had to say after selecting Hearts Desire Ajet Charity, as grand champion of the Central Pennsylvania Championship Holstein Show held August 21 on the last day of the Huntingdon County Fair.

Owned by Eugene and June Corl of Hearts-Desire Holsteins, near State College, this home-bred 4-year-old won the state show last fall and was also selected best bred and owned of that show.

At the championship show, this daughter of Bridon Astro Jet-ET won the daughter and dam award. Her mother placed first in the aged cow class.

Coming in as reserve champion was 5-year-old Solid Gold Rotate Easter owned by Michael D. and Cynthia Weimer of Solid Gold Holsteins.

Grand champion by a junior exhibitor went to Lory Baker and her junior 3-year-old Globe-Run CB Topgun Olso, sired by Globe-Run Warden Topgun.

Earlier in the show, June Corl won junior champion of the open show by showing a fall yearling heifer, Garden-Acres Cathy, owned by SCC Syndicate which includes Frank Connelly, Fred Strouse, and June Corl.

Reserve junior champion of the open show went to Greta Snider and Singing Brook Tribune Audrey, a winter yearling heifer. This heifer also won junior champion by a junior exhibitor. Reserve honors by a junior exhibitor went to Troy Young with JCY Starbuck Alexandria - ET, a Spring Yearling Heifer.

Globe-Run Farm earned premier exhibitor and premier breeder awards.

Ideal Holsteins placed first in the junior best three females class followed by Autumn View Holsteins and JCY Farms.

In the best three females class, Globe-Run Farm placed first, Mammoth-Spring Farm came in second, and Luxury Holsteins placed third.

Produce of dam class competition saw Luxury Holsteins in first place, Spring Lane Farm in second, and Paul Hartle third.

Hearts-Desire Farm placed first in the dam and daughter class with Paul Hartle in second and Autumn View third.

The show was a memorial tribute to Carl J. Yoder of Rocky-Side Farm who lost his life in a June farm accident.

Australian Exchange Youth Tours Local Family Beef Operations

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

STOUCHSBURG (Berks Co.) — A 27-year-old Australian man whose family runs a 476-acre sheep, beef and potato farm toured several beef farm operations and a livestock auction last week in southeastern Pennsylvania to learn more about how his American peers operate.

Geoff Bowles, from Mont Compass, Australia, is a member of the Victor Harbor Rural Youth Club, through which he was able to participate in an exchange program established between the United States' 4-H program and the Rural Youth organization of abroad.

That program is called the International Farm Youth Exchange (IFYE).

Bowles had been staying with a Pennsylvania family through the youth exchange program which works in cooperation with 4-H, although the ages of 4-H youth who travel range from 18 to 24, while the Rural Youth Club travelers are usually in the mid to late 20 and early 30s.

Though the local beef tour hadn't been planned prior to last week, through the Penn State Extension Service, was able to contact the Berks County/South East Cattlemen's Association and enjoy a quickly arranged, but full and representative tour of area beef operations and a livestock auction.

Gerri Gammel, president of the S.E./Berks County Cattlemen, said, "We're very happy to accommodate Goeffrey Bowles, and I think it was a good exchange of ideas and thoughts on both sides. And we tried to show him the range of our cattle industry — cow-calf operation, feeder operation, auction and a slaughter house-meat market."

The tour gathered at the home farm of Mike Firestine, who raises forage and grain crops, pumpkins, and Polled Hereford beef cattle in addition to serving as vice president in charge of agricultural lending for the Lebanon Valley National Bank.

From the Firestine home, Bowles was taken first to view Firestine's several acre cow-calf operation in the Millcreek Township area, where the Firestine and Bowles discussed the use of permanent paddocks and watering systems, forages, shipping weights, and general operational practices.

From there, Bowles was taken to Clair Zimmerman's Stouchsburg area farm where he fattens about 100 steers on silage and high moisture corn. At Zimmerman's Bowles remarked about the 1,200-pound to 1,300-pound, top-conditioned Limousin-Charolias steers. Bowles said he usually markets grass-only fed cattle at about 700 pounds.

Next, the entourage, including Shirley Fake, his exchange host, visited the Leesport Farmer's Market, where Bill Weist, co-owner of the livestock auction facility, gave him a tour of the sales ring and an explanation of the sale's scale system.

From there Bowles went to Peters Brothers meat shop in Leinharts, where Rex Peters gave a tour of the facility and talked about the type of meat and animals they seek.

Bowles said that farming is very different in Australia. He said that the climate is drier and ranges in temperature from freezing to 110, which necessitates irrigation for all crops and a water pond in each of the family farm's 20 paddocks planted in clover, rye and fescue.

He said they raise 1,000 sheep, about 28 acres of potatoes per year and keep about 150 cows for a cow-calf operation. Bowles said that he raises a Peidmontese cross, that originally came out of Italy, went to Canada and has been distributed since.

According to Bowles, while about 60 percent of the Australian beef is exported, the vealers sell best. He said vealers are sold at nine months age, which is much longer than normal for domestic veal.

The way their cattle are sold is much different also. According to Bowles, an agent for a major meat buyers or a local butcher comes to the farm to make requests for cattle. He said an agent will come to the farm two or three times a year to set up purchases, depending on how much and when the buyer needs the cattle.

He also said that every five years, the potatoes fields are rotated out and put into oats.

Bowles said his family's farm is "in the heart of a dairying area." He said that up until 1971, his parents Russell and Cynthia milked cows, but went into potatoes and then began diversifying.

For many reasons, the world sheep and wool market is extremely low and Australia lost a lot of exports because of the Gulf War and the World Recession, Bowles said. The country has stockpiled 4 million bales of wool, he said.

Thus the importance of the farm's potato and beef crops have taken a higher importance, but offer a chance at survival, he said.

Bowles said he was very grateful for all the help and kindesses he received during the tour and as part of being involved with the youth programs.

He said that had it not been for his trip sponsor, an Australian land and stock agent, Dalgety Bennet Farmers', he said wouldn't have had been able to make the trip.

The visit, though a surprise, was a pleasant one, according to Firestine and Bowles.

Firestine has been involved with educational tours of many sorts, and hosts groups of children to pick pumpkins out of his fields. He said he enjoyed discussing beef raising with Bowles.

Gammel said she enjoyed the tour also.

"That was actually the first time I showed somebody my farm," she said, adding that she hasn't been involved in beef farming long, only since 1988.

"The other thing, it was interesting for me," she said. "And for the amount of time we had to set it up, everyone was very gracious in allowing him to come in to visit their operations."

For more information on the Berks County/S.E. Cattlemen's Association, call Gammel at (215) 589-4856.

From the left, Mike Firestine holds his daughter Morgan's hand while he talks about his role and practices in a small cow-calf, intensive grazing operation with registered Polled Herefords and Simmentals to Geoff Bowles, a young man from Australia visiting the United States as part of an exchange program.

Equine Sleeping Sickness Confirmed

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has announced that eastern equine encephalomyelitis (EEE), a virus that causes "sleeping sickness" in horses, has been found in Maryland. The EEE virus is spread by the bite of an infected mosquito.

"EEE is an extremely serious disease, with an 80 percent mortality to horses and 30 percent to humans. It is a matter of public health and animal health concern," Walker said.

Maryland Department of Agriculture scientists at the Animal Health Laboratory in Salisbury, Md. diagnosed the disease as the cause of death of a horse in Wicomico County in mid-July. The Yale University Arbovirus Research Laboratory confirmed the diagnosis. This is the first confirmed horse case of the fatal disease found in Maryland since 1991.

"All horse owners should have their unvaccinated horses, ponies, mules, and (donkeys) vaccinated immediately by a veterinarian.

Seminar To Help Farmers Adjust To New Grain Market

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — Grain farmers can go into their fields this fall equipped with a better marketing plan by attending a special preharvest seminar organized by Cooperative Extension. This seminar can also benefit the dairy, beef, hog, and poultry producers who are concerned about higher feed costs during the next year.

The Grain Marketing Seminar will take place on Thursday, September 9, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Lehigh County Agricultural Center on Dorney Park Road in west Allentown. Cost is $8 and includes lunch and breaks.

The speaker will be James Russell, president of Russell Agricultural Consulting of Kennedyville, Md. Russell served for five years as marketing specialist with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, with special emphasis on grain. With his involvement, farmers have formed 17 grain marketing clubs including the Lehigh Valley Grain Marketing Club which has met regularly for more than two years.

Farmers attending the seminar will be given an overview of marketing alternatives, an explanation of grain basis and put and call options, and a look at the current grain market. The seminar ends with Russell's outlook for the next six months. A handout reviewing trends for corn, soybeans and wheat for southeast Pennsylvania will be provided. Also a satellite-fed market reporting service, Farm Dayta, will be demonstrated.

Midwest flooding, crop failures in the mid-Atlantic and further south and the chance of an early frost has made this harvest season one of the liveliest and most watched in recent years. More profitable grain marketing, according to Russell, is not about predicting price swings in such a market. Rather, the producer can develop a strategy that moves grain out with a few alternatives, based on readily available trend information.

Animal producers who buy corn and soybean meal also can benefit by attending this seminar. They will learn the flip-side of one of the marketing alternatives, namely using options to set a ceiling on the price they'll have to pay in 1994.

Reservations can be made by sending a check for $8 per attender, payable to the Lehigh County Extension Special Account, to Lehigh County Cooperative Extension, 4184 Dorney Park Road, Allentown, PA 18104-5798. Reservations should be received by September 7. Attendance will be limited to 50.

For more information, call the Lehigh County Extension Office at (215) 391-9840.

Prevent Piglet Crushing

with the

BSM
MODEL 90 FARROWING CRATE

Constructed from heavy gauge materials, this crate is designed to reduce crushing with sow comfort in mind. The bowed bottom bars make for a comfortable 33" crate width when the sow lays down, yet the adjustable anti-crush bars eliminate the sow from carelessly dropping on the piglets. This movement restriction does not hamper the sow as lays down, or wants to stand up, as the bars slide up and out of her way.

dairy policies that's forcing dairy farmers out of business and will continue too.

I wouldn't mind paying a person a good salary — say $50,000 per year if you really had my concern at heart. I'll bet if you leaders were receiving the same salary as was paid in 1981; you would be out scratching around a lot harder than you are.

I wonder if any of you will respond publicly to my request.

If you are working hard for the dairy farmer and trying to obtain a realistic price for us then you deserve a decent salary. If you are not working for our best interest, then stay in your office and let someone else set dairy policies.

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The 1993 Chester County 4-H Swine Show and Sale was held at New Holland Sales Stables.

Judge Bob Mikesell had a challenging evening as 70 hogs were entered. Grand champion market hog of this year's show went to Vicky Hewitt of Spring City. The 250-pound hog was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats for $2.90-pound.

The reserve grand champion was exhibited by first-year member Matt Beam of Elverson. Matt also exhibited the champion heavyweight, which was purchased by Erb Transport for $1.25-pound. The reserve champion weighed 255 pounds and sold to Hatfield for $2.25-pound.

The grand champion trio was exhibited by Jason Wagner of Spring City. The 725-pound trio was purchased by New Holland Sales Stables for $1.25-pound.

Jason also exhibited the champion lightweight that sold to Stoltzfus Meats for $1.10-pound. The reserve champion trio was exhibited by Eric Marsh of Honey Brook and was purchased by Leidy Packing of Shorthorn for $1:30-pound. Eric's brother Tom exhibited the reserve champion lightweight, which was also bought by Leidy's for $1.20-pound. Jody Hewitt, Vicky's sister, exhibited the reserve champion heavyweight which was purchased by Keystone Farm Credit for $1.10-pound.

Champion senior showman was David Howe of Downingtown and reserve champion senior showman was Kasey McAllister of Spring City. Champion junior showman was Jon Howe and reserve champion junior showman was Nathan Howe, both of Downingtown.

Trophies will be presented to these individuals at the annual livestock awards banquet in February, courtesy of the Lancaster-Chester County Pork Producers Council.

The sale averaged $.97 on 70 hogs sold. Volume buyer of the day was Hatfield Packing.

A number of 4-H members donated percentages of their hogs sold to the 4-H Center Building Fund. These members included Eric and Tom Marsh, Matt Beam, Jody Hewitt, and Angela Stoltzfus. David Howe and Jason Wagner both donated the proceeds from an entire hog to the center fund. Total money raised for the center from this endeavor totaled $887.77.

John Reininger, Hatfield Packing, is pictured with Vicky Hewitt and her grand champion market hog purchased by Hatfield for $2.90-pound.

4-Hers From Nine Counties Exhibit At Southeast District Show

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — The 48th Annual Southeast District 4-H Dairy Show was held last week, at the Kutztown Fairgrounds. There were 238 animals exhibited by 4-H dairy club members from nine southeastern Pennsylvania counties including Berks, Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Lehigh, Monroe, Montgomery, Northampton and Schuylkill Counties.

Among the animals exhibited were: 109 Holsteins, 24 Ayrshires, 23 Brown Swiss, 18 Guernseys, 57 Jerseys and 7 Milking Shorthorns. John Bomgardner, a Holstein breeder from Ono, Pennsylvania, judged the Holstein classes while Thomas Arrowsmith, a breeder of Jersey cattle from Peach Bottom, Pennsylvania, judged the colored breed classes.

During the course of the show, exhibitors who did an outstanding job of fitting and showing their animals were given Master Fitter and/or Master Showman Awards. The fitting and showmanship judge for the colored breeds was David Swartz, County Extension Director from Perry County, Pennsylvania. In the Holstein ring, Lisa Francisco, a Telemark representative and Holstein breeder from Branchville, New Jersey, judged showmanship and Thomas Barley, operating a registered Holstein dairy at Rheems, Pennsylvania, was the fitting judge.

The blue ribbon animals from each class became eligible to compete in the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show which will be held Monday, September 20, 1993, at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. At the state show, southeast district winners will compete against winners from other 4-H and FFA district shows.

Hells Canyon Agriculture In An Unlikely Environment

JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

KIRKWOOD BAR (Idaho) — "River time" they call it here.

Clocks become unimportant when you live by river time. Days begin early, with the rising of the sun over the canyon's Idaho rim, and end in the fading light of a pastel sunset sliding behind a mountain meadow in the rugged Oregon peaks.

There are no TV's, no computers, no meetings, no newspapers, no malls, no interstate highways, no telephones. There are only mountains — endless mountains — craggy, rocky cliffs that drop hundreds of feet to the river below, interspersed with steeply-sloping sweeps of grass and shrubby trees.

And always, there is the river.

The river is the Snake, rising out of the Tetons in Wyoming and slicing its way north through some of the Northwest's most rugged wilderness, to eventually join with the majestic Columbia River. Over the eons, the Snake has carved out of ancient volcanic deposits the deepest gorge in North America — Hells Canyon.

Hells Canyon National Recreation Area is part of the Wallowa-Whitman National Forest, more than 650,000 acres of wilderness in western Idaho and eastern Oregon. Terrain ranges from flat bars of sandy soil deposits along the Snake River to alpine meadows reaching well over 8,000 feet high in the Seven Devils Mountains. Herds of elk, mule deer, cougar, bobcats, rattlesnakes, and numerous small species are at home in the Hells Canyon wilderness. Birds and waterfowl of numerous species follow the river on their annual migration.

Because of its relative inaccessibility, the isolation and primitiveness of Hells Canyon remains much as it has been over the centuries. Only a few dirt roads traverse the lower canyon's nearly 100 miles-stretch, most of them winding, steep and dangerous in bad weather. Foot and horse trails are narrow paths carved out along the sheer rock and steep slopes along the canyon walls and are not-easily traveled.

Still, thousands of visitors each year enjoy the unique beauty and recreational opportunities of Hell's Canyon. And whether, they raft the miles of white-water rapids, bounce through them by jetboats or hike through by trail, most at least make a brief stop at Kirkwood Historic Ranch.

Though it seems unlikely at first introduction to the canyon, what the visitors who stop on Kirkwood Bar come to see is a tribute to agriculture.

The 10-acre Kirkwood Bar was once home to a thriving ranch, running up to 4,000 head of sheep on this rugged and unfriendly terrain. In fact, about 100 families homesteaded the canyon area in the late 1800s and early 1900s, carving out a nearly self-sufficient lifestyle far removed from the rest of the world. Nearly every one of the numerous river bars, some an acre or two, others much larger, supported canyon agriculture. Though cattle were run by some canyon ranches, sheep proved better adapted to the rugged environment.

Welcoming Hells Canyon visitors to Kirkwood Historic Ranch for the past two summers have been two former York countians, Patricia Bupp Bacha and her husband, Andrew "A.J." Bacha. Patty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bupp, Seven Valleys, and A.J. is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bacha, Red Lion. Both are teaching graduates of the University of Idaho, Moscow.

"I cried most of the way the first time we walked to Kirkwood," laughs Patty in remembrance of her first trip along the six-mile, cliffside hike from the downrive. trailhead at Pittsburg Landing. Even the journey to the trailhead itself is an adventure, an 18-mile drive from the main highway, along narrow gravel roads across high, rugged mountains, with steep, straight-down, dropoffs.

After making the hike in and out several times in this second summer, the former dairy farm daughter casually relates that she only saw one rattlesnake the last time - and just went around it.

During the grazing heydays of Hells Canyon, flocks of sheep were herded to the lush grass high country of the mountains through the summer months, to graze as far away as Montana. Livestock was brought back to winter in the relatively mild, river-tempered shelter of the canyon floor. Alfalfa and grass hay was grown on the flat, sandy bars, watered through the summers' 100-degree temperatures with hand-dug ditch irrigation channels carrying gravity-flowed water from the Snake and feeder creeks of high country snowmelt.

Kirkwood became the best-known of the canyon's ranches, made famous in the book HOME BELOW HELL'S CANYON by Grace Jordan. Grace and Len Jordan spent the depression years, 1932 through 1943, in the canyon's isolation, raising three children, improving the ranch facilities and expanding their flock to 3,000 head grazing 17,000 acres of rangeland. Jordan spent much time away from the ranch during the summer grazing season, while his wife, family and farmhands kept Kirkwood running in his absence.

The ranch was sold in 1943 when the Jordans moved "outside" the canyon, so their children could attend public schools. During their early school years, Grace Jordan taught them with a Baltimore, Maryland, based correspondence school curriculum. Len Jordan later became politically active, served as the governor of Idaho for a term, then represented Idaho as a Senator in Washington, D.C. for more than 10 years.

Bud and Helen Wilson, who purchased Kirkwood from the Jordans, increased the sheep flock to 4,800 head. Then, in 1973, the United States Department of Agriculture acquired the ranch for part of a national recreation area.

While a few active ranches still exist in the Hell's Canyon, most of Kirkwood remains today as it was when the sheep grazing era ended. The crumbling timber remains of a large feeding barn and lambing shed, the round, galvanized-metal grain bins still intact, testify to the riverbar's thriving ranching years. Old haying equipment, with explanatory markers and pictures, tells visitors how each piece was used to farm Kirkwood's alfalfa fields.

Water still tumbles down Kirkwood Creek, which slices through the center of the 10-acre bar, and can be diverted into the irrigation system canals by pulling a few metal slides. And remnants of the old stands of alfalfa still bloom, enjoyed today by wide-eyed mule deer with playful fawns by their sides.

The administering U.S. Forest Service has restored a former bunkhouse, built while Kirkwood was under Wilson ownership, by ranchhand Dick Sterling. Named in his memory, the long, low, expertly-crafted structure is constructed of lodgepole pine.

"There were no nails used in the sides or the roof," relates A.J. Bacha of the Sterling Museum where he and Patty welcome visitors and tell them about the ranch and canyon history. "Nails were used only to fasten down roofing materials."

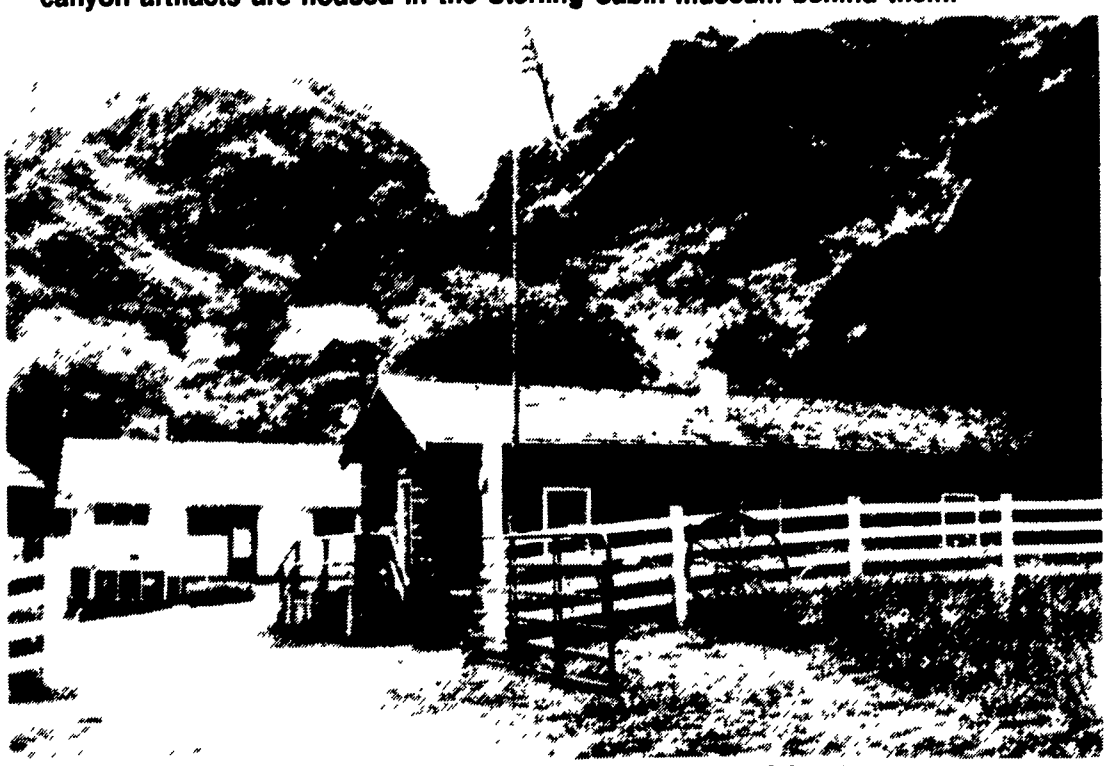
Three display sections of the museum focus on various aspects of ranching and canyon history. One includes various old implements and tools of ranching, with a numbered guessing-game for visitors to match the artifacts to their use.

"Usually a couple of our ranch cats are curled up on the old wooden wheelbarrow," Patty

(Turn to Page B3)

Kirkwood Historic Ranch is located on a 10-acre river bar 80 miles upstream (south) on the Snake River from Lewistown, Idaho. At the left of the upper bar are remains of the sheep sheds and lambing pens. Alfalfa, irrigated from Kirkwood Creek which crosses the riverbar, was grown on the lower portion of the ranch for winter hay needs.

"Hi! Welcome to Kirkwood," is how Patty and A.J. Bacha greet visitors to the historic sheep ranch on the Snake River in the Hells Canyon Wilderness. Ranch and canyon artifacts are housed in the Sterling Cabin museum behind them.



The lodgepole pine-built Sterling Cabin, in the foreground, is a former bunkhouse now converted for museum use to depict the agriculture and Indian history of Hell's Canyon and Kirkwood Historic Ranch. The Jordan House in the background serves as a private residence for ranch hosts and is on the National Historic Register.

Homestead Notes

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

As it has for goodness knows how many years, the back basement of our old farmhouse is once again being stockpiled against impending winter.

Winter?

Wiping perspiration from my hot face, steam pouring up from the bubbling kettle at my elbow, the thought of winter brings a refreshingly welcome image. Mental pictures of pine boughs sagging under a burden of fresh, white snow, of cold, crisp, moonlit nights, of little kids sledding down the hills flip through my sweaty head.

In the intense, brain-numbing humidity of late summer, it's easy to forget skidded cars, stalled motors, frozen pipes of the shivery season.

Is there some rule that decrees that the day you set out to "put up" summer produce must be one of those days that will set records for temperature and humidity highs? Or does it just feel that way as one swishes jars in hot, soapy water, sterilizes more canning lids and wonders where to begin cleaning up the mess that encompasses all corners of the kitchen in order to get done in time for evening milking chores.

"I am NOT canning one more jar of tomatoes," I declare to The Farmer that evening. "That does it."

And then am hit smack on the conscience with a heavy-duty layer of guilt at my thankless complaining over this abundance of fresh food.

With our local abundance of retail farm outlets and supermarkets overflowing with foodstuffs from literally around the world, why go to the hassle of "putting up" your own? Often, home-preserved or home-frozen is really less cost-effective than purchasing a similar food, especially in bulk on or sale.

But, later, surveying the days accomplishment of two-dozen jars of tomatoes ready for stashing on the shelves in the basement, I am reminded of a season a few years ago when a smaller planting and devastating drought wiped out our usual bumper crop. For the next year, canned tomatoes and tomato paste had to be bought for the many dishes in which I use it.

It just wasn't the same as having our home canned ones.

That memory renewed my enthusiasm — at least a few days later — for continuing the quest to squirrel away just a little more of the season's goodness. Summer apples on a old tree near the machine shop were falling right and left, being enjoyed by only the plentiful bees and some noisy, fruit-loving birds. All that good potential applesauce falling by the roadside nags at my thrifty nature.

In our family, preserving foods is a multi-generation tradition. Our mothers both still do some home canning, and have ever since we can remember. A delicious holiday gift last year from our daughter was homemade jelly of fruit she'd picked on Idaho trees, and hand-carried to us across the country. She lugged along several jars of my homemade applebutter along back.

Many of our recipes are hand-me-down traditions. Those for applebutter and sweet seven-day-pickles were favorites of The Farmer's grandmother. Applesauce is canned after the tradition of my Mom. Using our pink-streaked, sweet summer apples, no more "additives" than a little vanilla and cinnamon are usually necessary.

So, with renewed gratitude, I pick yet a few more of tomatoes from the tangled vines. Take note that the tiny juice grapes have turned blue. Lima beans hang fat and heavy in their leafy row. And the butternut squash promise a plentiful yield.

On the grocery list go Sure-Jell and sugar, canning jar lids and freezer bags.

There's a lot of "putting up" to do yet before winter.

Hells Canyon

notes, pointing out some of the canyon's unique strain of six-toed cats. "They're always a favorite of the kids that come through."

A second section of the museum is restored as part of the old bunkhouse might have looked, including woodstove and old agriculture-related magazines. The museum's third display area focuses on canyon residents of an earlier time, Indian tribes who sought out the canyon's abundant wildlife and tempered winter climate.

Archeological digs have traced canyon habitation to at least 7,200 years ago. Stone tools, remains of hunting implements, and displays of native plants used by the Indians for food trace the life of these earlier inhabitants. Much of what little is known of the early tribes has been carefully gleaned from excavating the remains of a few pit houses. A short hike up into the mountains which surround Kirkwood allows visitors to view remains in the brushy grass of the shallow, bowl-shaped depressions in the ground over which pit house roofs were constructed.

Forest Service rangers and volunteers who help care for the ranch and museum live in the small frame house built early in the century. The Jordans added the present basement kitchen and dining area and an open-air sleeping porch. Len Jordan also devised for his family the canyon's first bathtub, a vessel of poured concrete still in use today.

The small bathtub, made famous in Grace Jordan's book and related daily as favorite tale of jet-boat and raft guides, is built through a wall. Part of the tub is in the tiny bathroom, the other part projects into the adjoining porch, beneath a hand sink for washing up. That way, the plumbing pipes serve both sink and tub.

"A lot of people ask to see the tub," A.J. says of the facility in the ranch's private quarters, adding that visitors are amazed that it's still in regular use.

Among the guests the couple welcomed through the past several weeks were one of the Jordan sons, who shared fascinating stories with them of the childhood years he spent growing up in the canyon's isolation. They also hosted Idaho Governor Cecil Andrus and a party of Forest Service personnel to a casual luncheon on the ranch lawn in mid-July as a wrap-up of his tour of the recreation area.

The Bachas' summer stay at Kirkwood ended recently when they returned to Portland, Oregon; Patty is a teacher at Portland Community College and A.J. will pursue graduate studies at Multnomah Bible College. Forest Service caretakers and volunteers keep Kirkwood open year-round for visitors. Changing seasons bring hunters, anglers seeking the Snake's popular steelhead and sturgeon fishing, while snow in the higher elevations beckons cold-weather campers and cross-country skiers.

Further information on Hell's Canyon, its history and recreational offerings is available by contacting the Hells Canyon National Recreation Area Headquarters, Rt. 1, Box 270A, Enterprise, Oregon. 97828.

Have You Heard?

Simple Steps To Becoming Food And Kitchen Literate

Good cooking starts with good tools: your head, hands — and yes, your eyes, ears, nose and palate, too! The more involved your senses are, the more aware you are and the better cook you will become. For example, watching and listening to butter sizzle in the pan can tell you when the pan is hot enough to add vegetables to saute. The aroma and color of sauteed onions will tell you when they are mellowed from sauteing. Learn to use all of your senses.

Get back to the basics with simple equipment: a good chef's knife, a simple cutting board, a heavy 10- to 12-inch fry pan with a lid and a good saucepan with a lid will serve you for a lifetime.

Learn some basic cooking techniques that will serve you well without the latest in high-tech kitchen equipment. Chopping, sauteing, marinating, omelet-making, and roasting will enable you to create a multitude of meals from fresh ingredients.

Anytime you plan a menu, think about the food components and the possible part they can play in another menu. Fresh green beans in season are great tonight, cooked fresh; tomorrow they re-appear cold as part of a main-course salad or perhaps chopped into a hearty soup or stew. Think beyond tonight's meal; when preparing a roast, plan how to serve leftovers. Your roast can be sliced and heated in barbecue sauce on buns; julienned for a chef's salad or cubed and stirred into a hot dish like fried rice. If cubing pork loin for grilled kabobs, think about grilling some extra for a goulash later in the week. Do you need some chopped onion for tonight and later in the week? Do enough for both...right now.

The freezer can be full of dividends for future meals or a graveyard of forgotten, ill-planned meals. Label names and dates on all leftovers going into the freezer. Keep a list posted somewhere in the kitchen so you know at a glance what's available. Many cooked foods are best when used within three to four months of being frozen.

The star of one meal can play more than one role. That good chili you stashed in the freezer does not have to be served again with crackers and carrot sticks on the side. Spoon it into a pie pan, top with cornbread batter for a tamale-like pie. Spoon over a hot baked potato or a plate of spaghetti. Got the idea?

Be flexible. If you were planning on serving fresh green beans, but they don't look so good at the produce sections, select an alternative — how's the zucchini this week?

If you do not see what you want at the supermarket, ask. Your store manager wants you to shop at his store and will gladly package the one pork chop or chicken breast that you want.

Take advantage of today's choices that abound in your local supermarket. For example, many modern produce sections offer precut or small portions of the fresh veggies you want. You may not want a whole head of cauliflower. Try the supermarket deli section or produce section for chopped vegetables for stir-frying or salad makings. Five pounds of potatoes may find themselves sprouting in your kitchen before you use them all — so purchase potatoes in the quantity you want.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Labor Day weekend is followed closely by school days. However, I've learned that our grandchildren in other states started school August 23rd. Our daughter drives her kindergartner as the child does not want to go on the bus.

When I went to school, I did not have a choice. I walked almost a mile to a two-room brick building. Today I wonder how I even managed to find the school as there were several turns before I got to the main road. And, I went alone as my mother had several young ones at home.

In Georgia the PTA members run the library and they also pay for a school nurse. Here we expect that service to be provided and our taxes are proportionately high. However, I do remember that when our oldest daughter was in sixth grade, she ran the library as there was no librarian that year. She enjoyed the job as her lessons didn't keep her busy.

Her school bus stop was well over a mile from our secluded farmhouse and so I drove her the first day. She skipped off without a backward glance. I sat in the car and shed a few tears as she gleefully hopped on the bus. But, not all children have the smae attitude toward school.

Our son was shy and had a hard time adjusting to school. He also had a teacher who appeared to hate little children and treated them accordingly. After a rough start, he managed to do all right and now is the manager of the largest egg processing plant in the state of Virginia.

Do Chicken Right

Chicken is America's choice. It can be prepared in an almost endless variety of ways. Chicken provides the same complete protein as red meat and a 3-ounce serving of chicken breast contains less than 120 calories.

The spectacular growth in chicken consumption in the past 40 years can be attributed to convenience, nutrition, and price value.

Trying to reduce your fat intake but finding it difficult to sacrifice such favorite foods as Mom's batter fried chicken? Don't despair. Try a delicious new twist on traditional oven-fried chicken — Lemon-Apricot Chicken and many of the other recipes that appear in this column.

Zucchini Jelly

6 cups peeled zucchini, ground or grated
6 cups sugar
6 ounces crushed pineapple
2 (3-ounce) boxes apricot Jell-O

Peel and grate zuchini, drain. Add 6 cups sugar and 6 ounces crushed pineapple, and juice. Boil together for 6 minutes. Remove from stove. Add Jell-O while hot. Stir well and pour into jars. Seal. Other flavors of Jell-O may be substituted if desired.

Zucchini Jelly

6 cups zucchini, finely chopped but not peeled
½ cup lemon juice, bottled
1 cup crushed pineapple with juice
6 cups sugar
1 large box Jell-O, any flavor

Cook zucchini, lemon juice and pineapple over low heat for 1 hour. Add sugar and Jell-O, cook 6 minutes. Pour into sterilized glass jars and seal.

ANSWER — Sherry Craner, Bridgeton, N.J., wanted a recipe for chocolate pasta, made with wheat flour sauteed strawberries. Thanks to Linda Miller, Felton, who sent a chocolate pasta recipe, which does not include strawberries, nevertheless it sounds like a wonderful dessert. You may substitute whole wheat flour for the all-purpose flour. Also, Betty Light, Lebanon, writes that she remembers seeing two recipes in one of her cookbooks. Unfortunately, she has recently had two heart attacks and has been unable to find the recipes, but she remembers that to make chocolate pasta add either ¼ cup cocoa or 1 ounce unsweetened chocolate to a regular pasta recipe.

Peggy Glass's Chocolate Lasagna

1¾ cup all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
Pinch of salt
2 extra-large eggs
2 teaspoons vegetable oil

Combine the flour, cocoa, and salt in a bowl; make a well in the center. Add eggs and oil in the center of the well and mix with a fork to form the dough. Knead the dough for 15 minutes until it is smooth and shiny, adding more flour if necessary to keep the dough from sticking. Wrap well with plastic wrap and let the dough rest for 30 minutes. Roll pasta out by hand or with a machine cut it into 8 4½ x11-inch strips. Cook two strips at a time in boiling salted water. Put noodles into cold water to stop the cooking. When cooled, place on towels in a single layer to drain.

Filling:

4 cups whole milk ricotta cheese
2 cups heavy cream
6 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons Grand Marnier
Pinch salt

Combine all ingredients and mix until smooth.

12 ounces bittersweet chocolate, chopped

Preheat oven to 425 degrees with the rack in the upper third of the oven. Generously butter 8x11x2-inch pan. Alternate layers of noodles, cheese filling, and chocolate, ending with a cheese layer. Bake 20 to 25 minutes until the top is lightly colored. Let lasagna stand for 10 minutes to solidify, then serve warm.

Cake Frosting and Decorating

Cakes in the bakery section of the supermarket always look beautiful. You can achieve the same professional look at home. Here's how:

• Split cakes into layers, mark sides of cake with toothpicks. Cut through cake using the toothpicks as a guide.

• Lay strips of waxed paper along edges of cake plate to keep plate clean. Place one layer, rounded side down on cake plate.

• Spread about ⅓ cup frosting over top of cake layer within ¼ inch of the edge. Place second layer, rounded side up, on top of first layer.

• Now for the sides: Coat with a very thin layer of frosting to seal in the crumbs. Frost side of cake in swirls, making a rim about 2 inch high above the top of the cake to make the top appear flat.

• Spread remaining frosting on top, just to the built-up rim. Take away the waxed paper.

• For a simple decorating idea, arrange fancy candies, nuts or chocolates, such as truffles, on top and side of the frosted cake.

Plant Watering Habits All Wet?

(NAPS) — To increase the life span of your plants this summer, here are a few helpful gardening tips.

According to Decor America Inc., a leading manufacturer in the production of self-watering plantpots, most people's watering habits consist of either deluging plants with too much water or ignoring them for weeks.

To prevent gardening mishaps, experts recommend you plant indoor and outdoor plants in self-watering plantpots. These include the Cylinder line for houseplants and Roman line for the great outdoors!

Indoor and outdoor plantpots water from the roots up, automatically combining the right amount of water and air to grow healthier flowers and shrubs.

Easy-to-use, these indoor and outdoor plantpots come fully assembled.

To pot plants, gardeners need only fill the capillary pillars with potting soil, tapping it down firmly before planting. As the plant uses the moisture in the potting mix, water is drawn up from the waterwell to the plant's root system by capillary action. Because of this natural process, the plant takes in only as much water as it needs.

To water plants, gardeners need only add water through the easy to locate side opening. The water level can be checked by looking through the same side opening or by dipping a finger into the waterwell. The well storage allows plants to go two to three weeks without attention (depending on plant type) saving time, water and your plants!

In the case of rain, excess water seeps through the soil and is stored in the waterwell. Over-watering cannot occur because the floor of the pot is designed to remain above the water level and the excess water is drained through the side opening. The ventilated floor ensures proper aeration, eliminating chances of root rot. The waterwell side opening is also perfect for adding liquid fertilizers allowing direct access to plant's roots.

For more information regarding self-watering plantpots, please call Decor America Inc. at (800) 332-6711.

Snooze Away

Do you remember the old advice of warm milk at bedtime to promote sleep? New research at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is looking into the milk-sleep connection. Thoughts are that tryptophan, a building block of protein found in milk and other protein foods, can be converted into serotonin (a brain chemical that acts as a relaxant). Because of this perceived "a sleep potion" image, tryptophan in the form of supplements became a big seller. However, recent reports have linked these products to a rare and dangerous blood disorder; as a result, the Food and Drug Administration ordered the supplements off the market. While more research is needed for the warm milk theory, there's certainly no harm — and maybe some nutritional benefits — in this practice!

Time To Plant Bulbs

RUTGERS, N.J. — Fall is the time to think spring and plan bulb plantings. Among hardy "bulbs" suggested as being deer-resistant are: snowdrop, snowflake, scilla, grape hyacinth, crocus, chionodoxa, fritillary, allium, eranthis, crown imperial, iris and daffodil.

Narcissus is the genus which includes those spring flowers we variously call narcissdus, doffodil, jongiul. There are 20,000 varieties of these popular springtime bloomers which can make selection a puzzle as well as a pleasure. Narcissus are grouped into 11 main divisions and 18 subdivisions. Popular terms can distinguish them more simply.

The common name "daffodil" should refer to trumpet-flowered narciccus - those in which the trumpet part of the flower is equal in length to or longer than what might commonly be called the petals. The name "jonquil" should refer only to certain species - N. Jonquilla, N. Juncifolius - and their hybrids. It would be correct to call any of this huge group of plants narcissus.

How to choose narcissus? Personal taste for color and form are probably the first considerations. Also important may be cost. Narcissus should be planted in groups or drifts of a single variety to look their best. Some varieties may be more expensive than others, but "bargain price" bulbs may not be the answer, either.

Any bulb, including narcissus needs a well-drained site, with some sun, and where after-bloom foliage, which must be left to die-back naturally, will not be a "problem" either visually or physically. Planting details should be provided with the bulbs and will vary with species and variety. Soil should be prepared, as for any planting, with additions of fertilizer, organic matter, and lime if soil pH is low.

E-Town Contests Include One Egg-Citing Race

Crossing over the finish line is first-place winner Jenna Myers.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Jenna Myers wanted to win a plastic farm animal last week at the Elizabethtown Fair.

To do so, she had to race.

Holding an egg in a spoon, mind you.

Against others who were close in age — 5 and under.

Within minutes, they were off. You could see they were more interested in keeping the egg steady and not dropping it than where the finish line was. But Jenna saw the finish line, and in a close race, won quickly.

The hardest part of the race was trying to decide which animal to choose from the pile of prizes, and which color.

For second place Peter Davis, he picked the candy. April Helt, who placed third, picked the squirt gun.

And while some kids spent time at the Elizabethtown Fair last week cleaning and dressing their animals before showtime, some spent time at the second annual Mount Joy 4-H Rabbit Club Exhibit.

The animal petting zoo, coordinated by the 4-H Club, provided a showcase of different rabbit breeds and some hatching chicks.

Of the 30 eggs placed in the cage, according to Dwight Algoe, leader of the club, 27 had hatched on Wednesday. And 4-H'ers were on hand to help sort them out and sell them.

Helping out at the show were Sarah Algoe, wife of Dwight, also a club leader; and several 4-H'ers, including Brad Bettinger, 7; Nicole Hess, 8; Kristy Bender, 10; Kendy Zeager, 10; and Emily Algoe, 14.

My grandparents are: maternal, Elizabeth L. Stoltzfoos, Bird-In-Hand, and paternal, David and Katie Smucker, Churchtown.

Our next door neighbors are Benuel and Mary Riehl. They have one child, Melvin Lee. His first birthday will be on September 2.

We take care of 3,000 laying hens from October until July. We milk about 30 cows. Then we also have a few horses and, of course, some cats. Our workhorse, Tipsy has a colt, Topsy Jr.

I go to Millroad School. Our teacher is Anna Martin. I'm now ready for eighth grade, and I'm looking forward to being out of school, which will start August 30. Summer vacation sure does fly!

Containers Well-Suited To Late Season Gardening

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — If the garden season escaped you, consider starting a container garden for the porch or patio.

Changes in growing media, soil amendments, fertilizers, containers and plant types have allowed just about everyone to enjoy garden-fresh vegetables. To get started, you will need containers, prepared soil mix, plants or seeds, water, light and fertilizer.

Any container large enough to hold a fully grown plant will be satisfactory. Appearance is important if the container is used in your living space. Root crops like radish and miniature tomato adapt well in a 10-inch pot or container.

Most larger crops such as pepper, eggplant or tomato will grow in 5-gallon plastic trash cans or half-bushel or bushel baskets that are 12- to 18-inches deep. Adequate root space is important, and containers must have drain holes to allow excess water to move out of the growing medium and away from the roots.

Under no circumstance should you use garden soil for your growing medium. The weight and physical properties (slow drainage) of garden soil, as well as weed seeds and disease organisms, make it unsuitable for containers. Soil substitutes made from peat moss, vermiculite and fertilizer are ideal.

Prepared mixes are available from most garden centers and greenhouses. These mixes are free of pests and weeds, hold moisture and nutrients well and are lightweight.

To make your own growing medium, mix one bushel of horticultural vermiculite and one bushel of shredded peat moss. Then, mix in one and one-quarter cups of fine-ground limestone (dolomitic limestone can also be used because it supplies magnesium), one-quarter cup of 45-percent superphosphate and one cup of a 5-10-5 fertilizer.

All vegetables need sunlight. Leafy vegetables like lettuce, cabbage or greens tolerate more shade than root crops like beets and radish. Fruiting plants like cucumber, tomato, pepper and eggplant need as much sun as possible. Consider putting wheels on the container so you can follow the sun.

You can probably still get some transplants at the garden center or greenhouse. They may also have some larger specimen plants already in containers that can be used. Seeds can be sown directly into the growing medium. Use short-season crops or those that mature in the cool fall weather. When selecting seeds, check the packet to see if there are enough growing days left in the season. Since you are starting late, select seeds with the shortest possible growing season.

Follow about the same plant spacing in the container as you would with a ground planting. Don't be tempted to crowd plants in a container.

A container garden dries out much faster than an in-ground garden, so you may have to water some plants several times during warm weather. The growing medium should be kept uniformly moist. There is no specific watering schedule for you to follow. Just water when the surface of the growing medium is dry.

Apply enough water so that a small amount comes through the drain holes. This will tell you that the total root system is moist and it will also help wash the mineral salts and fertilizer residue from the medium. This periodic leaching reduces the chance of soluble salt injury to the root system. Discard the drain water; don't let the "salty" solution be absorbed back into the medium in the container.

The initial lime and fertilizer incorporated into the medium will get the plants off to a good start. As plants grow, nutrients will be used and some will be lost in the drain water. Once the plants are established, maintain fertility with soluble fertilizer materials, applied according to package directions.

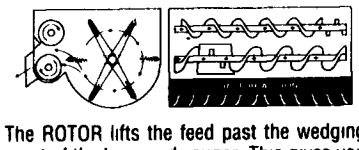
"Zone feeding convinced me."

"I'd heard talk around the industry that ROTO-MIX® Feed Mixers were good, but guys like me need to see it for themselves. So we bought a ROTO-MIX and fed half of the yard with it and the other half with an auger mixer for a year. The ROTO-MIX fed cattle consumed from .5 to 1 lb. more feed per day than cattle fed from the auger mixer. That was proof enough for me. We bought another ROTO-MIX and put our old auger mixer out to pasture. For my money, nobody delivers feed to the bunk better than ROTO-MIX."

Thane Moore, Manager
Sauvage Feed Yard, Oberlin, KS

The ROTO-MIX® Mixing System



The ROTOR lifts the feed past the wedging point of the lower side auger. This gives you a fluffier ration at lower power requirements. The feed moves through the mixing chamber, eliminating dead spots, pile up in corners and auger tunneling through feed.

The ROTO-MIX patented mixing system provides faster mixing with less horsepower and less grinding of flaked and high-moisture grain, pellets and other ingredients resulting in less fines in the bunk and increased consumption per head.

Vicki Stahl Wears Crown For Somerset Fair

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — Vicki Stahl was chosen as the 1993 Somerset Co. Fair Queen following the vesper service which officially opened this year's big agricultural fair. She was crowned by Christy Sanner, the 1992 fair queen.

First runner-up was Jill Clites. The other contestants were Valerie Castro and Bobbi Darr.

Stahl, 19, is the daughter of George and Audrey Stahl, Somerset, and a sophomore at the Waynesburg College.

No stranger to the county fair or interacting with the public, she is a 10-year member of the Steaks and Chops 4-H Club, and showman of steers and pigs at the fair. Two times her animals were named the grand champion steer.

A past winner of the state 4-H public speaking contest, she is both a former Maple Princess and Somerset Co. Dairy Princess. Her savvy in forensics took her all the way to national qualification.

Clites, 17, wrote a special poem about the Somerset Co. Fair and recited it for the grandstand audience during the contest. Clad in a vivid red satin gown of her own construction that propelled her through local and regional fashion revues, Clites was sponsored by the Milksquirts 4-H Club and the Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA.

The daughter of Tim and Sue Clites, Berlin, she is active in the county fair with dairy and market lambs. Through the years, she's had numerous sewing projects.

Valerie Castro, 17, is the daughter of Donald and Vernice Castro, Berlin, and member of the Valley 4-H Club.

Both photography and sewing projects have allowed her to prove her skills in the respective fields, taking her to state and national competitions.

Bobbi Darr, also 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Darr, Somerset. A lover of the equine set, Darr is a member of the Horse and Rider 4-H Club, DorMel Farms and the Somerset Co. Saddle Club.

She's done well in public and extemporaneous speaking as well as livestock and horse judging, which found her winning in the county, regional and state competitions.

Outgoing fair queen Sanner, the daughter of Lynn and Debbie Sanner, Rockwood, is enrolled at the Shippensburg University where she is studying computer science.

Brad Bodary, Flint, Michigan, pleased the grandstanders with his mime performance prior to the introduction of the four contestants. Asked how long it took him to learn not to laugh while miming, he said it took a long period of intense discipline.

He also adopts the persona of a clown in his profession entertaining in amusement parks, retail stores, and through the summer fair circuit. Prior to becoming independent, Bodary was associated with the Ringling Bros. Circus.

A local radio personality, Jerry Lyons, was master of ceremonies for the contest.

Judges were Beth Taylor Ackelson, Butler. She is the choral director for the Karns City High School and rendered a solo, "Think of Me" from Phantom of the Opera. She's been involved for 23 years with the Butler Fair.

Ann Truitt Kopnitsky from Clarion Co. is also very active in her county fair. She lives on a farm and is a learning support teacher.

Carol Babinsack, a member of the Fulton Co. Fair board, was the third judge. She teaches preschool developmentally delayed children in the Tuscarora Intermediate Unit.

Mary Will and her daughter, Wendy, Berlin, coordinated the contest. Wendy Will, two years ago was the Somerset Co. and Pa. Fair Queen.

Look At Butter In A New Light

(NAPS) — In our health-conscious society, many people have switched from butter to margarine to lower their intake of saturated fat. In fact, people consume two-and-a-half times more margarine than butter — sacrificing flavor for less saturated fat and cholesterol.

Now, people can return to the rich taste of butter but consume less fat than when eating regular butter. Butter has become "light." This spring, Land O' Lakes introduced Light Butter, with half the fat, calories and cholesterol of regular butter. This first nationally available light butter is made primarily with Grade AA butter, water and pasteurized milk.

How does it taste? Light Butter has the same creamy flavor as regular butter because it is 40 percent butterfat, compared with margarine, which is 80 percent vegetable fat. According to taste tests, more than seven of 10 consumers said Light Butter tasted as good as regular butter.

Served plain, or blended with fresh herbs and spices, Light Butter is the perfect light, low-calorie topping for foods typically spread with butter.

• Blend ½ cup (one stick, softened) Light Butter with 1 teaspoon firmly packed brown sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Serve on English muffins, toast, pancakes or waffles.

• Toss 3 cups cooked, sliced carrots with 2 tablespoons Light Butter, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar and 2 tablespoons chopped fresh mint.

• Blend 2 tablespoons softened Light Butter with ½ teaspoon dried basil leaves, dried dill weed or dried oregano leaves and serve over broiled fish fillets, such as orange roughy, sole or salmon.

Because it is lower in fat and has a higher moisture content, Light Butter is not recommended for baking and frying.

For more information on LAND O LAKES® Light Butter, send your name and address (postcards preferred) to LAND O LAKES® Light Butter, "Look at Butter in a New Light," P.O. Box 26341, Shoreview, MN 55126-0341, or call 1-800-782-9602.

Mifflin County Youth Show Fills Barns To Capacity

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

MIFFLIN (Mifflin Co.) — "It's a problem I can live with," said Mifflin County's 4-H and youth development extension agent a few months before the Youth Fair. Jim Ladlee was seeing how the Youth Fair entries were shaping up, and when the 1993 Mifflin County Youth Fair got under way, Ladlees' predicted problem rang true — the barns were filled to capacity. The general trend over the past few years has been more of all animal projects.

More kids with more projects meant changes in the "Green" building too. This marked the first year for nonparticipant judging in the building that houses non-livestock entries such as sewing, woodworking, vegetables, ceramics, cake decorating, and more.

"We all agree it's better for participants to talk to the judges," said extension director Dave Filson. But, he said, kids were standing in line sometimes 45 minutes and many kids had several projects. "We designed a judging sheet with room for comments and the kids get those judging sheets." Filson said non participant judging streamlined the whole process.

While more entries and quicker judging time help make any fair successful, Filson was quick to credit all the volunteers who help towards success — from kid sign-ups to meals, displays, entering animals, helping in the showring, set-up, and tear-down — you name it, Filson said. "If there were no volunteers, we wouldn't have a successful fair."

Filson enjoyed the fair as both extension director and parent and noted that downpours during two days of the fair muddied the midways but did little to dampen the fair spirit. No one in agriculture complained about the badly needed rain.

And, under roof, the shows went on as usual.

In the Open Dairy Show, Ayrshire grand champion went to John Reed Rodgers and his senior yearling Plum Bottom Lovely Tet-ET. She has won several shows and is consigned to the Pennsylvania Ayrshire Elite Sale at the All American this September. Her full sister was junior champion at the Farm Show. Reserve Grand Champion went to Rodger's Winter Yearling Plum Bottom Legend's Noelle.

Clinton E. Staley showed the Brown Swiss Grand Champion, a 4-year-old named Hidden Hills G Flora. Reserve Grand Champion went to Christopher Uhland and his Junior 2-year-old Penstate Eventide Jesi CBU.

The Lee and Joanne Yoder family of Ridge-Point Farm in McVeytown won the Premier Exhibitor Award. Andy Reed earned both the Daughter and Dam and the Produce of Dam Awards. MILK. IT DOES A BODY GOOD.™

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Nancy B. Matter, Halifax, wanted a recipe for caramel icing for a moist chocolate cake. Thanks to Mrs. Robert Cummings of western Pa. and to another reader for sending recipes.

Caramel Frosting

3 cups brown sugar
1 cup cream
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix together ingredients in saucepan. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Cook syrup until it forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water. Cool until you can hold your hand on the bottom of the pan. Beat until creamy and spread on cake.

Brown Sugar Icing

1½ cups brown sugar
⅔ cup plus 1 tablespoon half and half or cream
¼ cup butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cook until mixture forms a soft ball in cold water. Whip with a spoon until it is cool enough to spread.

Mrs. Robert Cummings writes that this is a delicious icing.

ANSWER — I.A. Kirk, Silver Spring, Md., requested a recipe for turtle soup that comes from a restaurant in New Orleans. Thanks to Josephine Maternus, Dallas, for sending a recipe.

Turtle Soup

1 pound turtle meat, chunked
1 cup shortening
1 cup onions, diced
6 cloves garlic, chopped
16 ounces tomato sauce
¼ cup beef extract
4 bay leaves
1 cup celery
1 cup flour
3 quarts water
2 teaspoons celery salt
12 cloves
1 teaspoon thyme
½ cup parsley, chopped
½ cup Lea and Perrins sauce
Salt and pepper to taste

Garnish with:

1 cup sherry
2 lemons, diced thin
2 chopped hard-boiled eggs

Saute turtle in shortening until browned. Add onions, celery, and garlic; cook 10 minutes. Blend in flour and cook 5 minutes, add tomato sauce, water, beef extract, and other ingredients, except sherry, lemons, and eggs that are used to garnish. Simmer about 2 hours until meat is tender.

Garnish with lemon and chopped eggs. Add a little sherry to serving. Yields 1 gallon.

CORRECTION — The recipe for Freezer Bread and Butter Pickles that appeared in the August 14th issue on page B8, should have requested only 2 cups sugar, not 3.

40- TO 60-HP JOHN DEERE SPIRIT TRACTORS

Raise your productivity

Here's the perfect team for your dairy operation. A John Deere Spirit tractor with a job-matched 520 or 540 Loader. Choose from the 40-hp 5200, 50-hp 5300, or 60-hp 5400. All three feature John Deere wet-sleeve diesels which maximize fuel efficiency and productivity.

Plus, Spirit tractors deliver the highest standard hydraulic capacity in their horsepower class. You get a high-volume 11.4 gallons per minute, with working pressures up to 2,750 psi. So you can lift more, faster.

And for fast, smooth shifting, choose the optional top-shaft-synchronized (TSS) transmission. Improved shuttle-shift capability makes it perfect for loader work.

Need more traction in slippery lots or muddy fields? Add MFWD for more pulling power plus a tight turning radius.

To speed up loader work and free up more time for other herd management tasks, see your John Deere dealer soon for a Spirit tractor.

Cattle Evaluation Results

A beef cattle workshop held recently in Lancaster County attracted nearly 100 producers to the New Holland Sales Stables to participate in live animal evaluation. Two days later, 75 attended a carcass session at Stoltzfus Meats, Intercourse.

The program, conducted by Penn State extension, provided an opportunity for cattle feeders to estimate nine head of beef cattle for live weight, dressing percent, quality grade, yield grade, fat thickness, and rib eye area.

Participants compared their guesses with live estimates by four industry experts; ultrasound scans by Mike Cherchuck, Carlisle; and official carcass data collected by Dr. Bill Henning, Penn State extension meats specialist.

During both sessions, information was provided to producers regarding beef quality assurance, particularly injection site damage and how to prevent it.

Sponsors for the event included the Pennsylvania Beef Council, Hoechst-Roussel, Merck, Upjohn, and Franklin Labs.

Following is a table with official results, including the average estimates of four expert evaluators, ultrasound scans, and actual carcass data.

Numbers 420,935, no tag, 19E and 381 were crossbred steers. Numbers 20E and 919 were heifers. Numbers 1 and 57 were Holstein steers.

Save Money With Custom Precoolers

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — Dairy producers can cut operating costs and installation charges with unique, individually-sized precooling designs.

Every Surge Plate Kooler and Surge Kool Way Chiller™ is custom-sized for each dairy's milk flow rate using exclusive, advanced computer technology.

"By eliminating the 'one-size-fits-all' philosophy for precooling equipment, dairy producers save money and can earn bonuses for quality, precooled milk," said Kevin Kastenschmidt, customer satisfaction associate at Babson Bros. Co. "In some cases, electric companies have offered special savings in addition to standard rebates because these custom-built units lower electric usage."

The Kool Way Chiller uses 20 to 30 percent less horsepower than traditional systems because it forces water through chiller barrel evaporators instead of relying on gravity-flow heat exchange. In addition to using less electricity, installation charges are less than for other units because all components are pre-assembled, tested, and packaged in a stainless steel cabinet with a prewired control box.

A specially engineered intermediate grid in the Plate Kooler increases cooling efficiency by improving water movement. The Plate Kooler uses well water or well water and ice water for instant cooling. It is available in wall-mounted or free-standing units. All plates are constructed of 316-gauge stainless steel with a titanium additive for extra strength.

For more information on performance-guaranteed precooling equipment, contact your local Surge dealer or write to Cooling Products, Babson Bros. Co., 1880 Country Farm Drive, Naperville, IL 60563.

Surge precooling devices are custom-sized to match the milk flow rate of each dairy, and cut operation and installation costs.

Sept. 30 Deadline To Preservation Program

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — The Lehigh County Agricultural Land Preservation Board is accepting applications for the second 1993 funding round of the Lehigh County Agricultural Conservation Easement Program.

Through this program, qualified Lehigh County farmland owners can apply to sell an agricultural conservation easement to Lehigh County and to the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Agricultural conservation easements preserve farmland by permanently limiting all forms of nonagricultural development on a farm property. In return for giving up development rights, landowners can receive cash payments equal to the difference between the fair market value and the agricultural value of their property.

To date, the agricultural conservation easement program has preserved 16 farms in Lehigh County totaling 1,834 acres.

Applications may be picked up in Room 105 of the Lehigh County Agricultural Center, 4184 Dorney Park Road in South Whitehall. The deadline for submitting an application is Thursday, September 30. Please call Jeff Zehr at (215) 391-9583 for more information.

Nutrient Management Show Set

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Department of Agriculture Secretary Robert L. Walker announced that the next Nutrient Management Certification Examination is scheduled for Wednesday, September 15 at MDA's headquarters building in Annapolis.

The exam is open to qualified consultants and members of the fertilizer industry seeking to provide farmers with state-approved nutrient management recommendations.

Those interested should submit a completed application along with a $50 fee to MDA by August 31. (Personnel from government agencies are exempted from the $50 payment requirement.) Applications may be obtained by calling Brenda Washington at (410) 841-5863. A list of recommended study materials will be supplied to all qualifying applicants.

Established in 1992, Maryland's Nutrient Management Certification Program is a key tool in the state's efforts to reduce nutrients entering the Chesapeake Bay by 40 percent by the year 2000. Qualified individuals are certified by MDA to join a team of 20 specially-trained Cooperative Extension Service consultants as state-approved nutrient management providers.

Using soil tests, manure analyses, and computer technology, consultants provide farmers with a "prescription" approach to fertilizer use. This helps ensure that nutrients applied are used by crops and not lost to the environment.

Earlier this year, 83 applicants passed the first Nutrient Management Certification Examination and were subsequently certified as nutrient management providers.

MDA offers the certification examination twice yearly, along with periodic training courses.

"The response to this voluntary program by consultants and the fertilizer industry has been tremendous," said Secretary Walker. "We're looking forward to another good turnout for the exam."

For more information on Maryland's nutrient management certification program, call (410) 841-5863.

USING WHEAT IN BEEF RATIONS

The drought situation in many areas of the state will force many cattle feeders to use some alternative feedstuffs in the coming year. One such alternative for this year may be the use of wheat in cattle diets.

Frequent changes in the price of wheat often make it attractive as a feed for beef cattle. Wheat has about 100 percent of the energy value of corn, and it has about 105 percent of the protein value. This makes wheat even more desirable as a ration component when protein costs are high.

Wheat provides a highly-degradable source of energy for the ruminant. As a result, wheat cannot totally replace corn as the energy component of the diet because of a higher incidence of acidosis and founder.

Therefore, a general rule is that wheat should not replace more than 50 percent of the corn in the diet, particularly for feedlot steers. Secondly, because of the high degradability of wheat energy, cattle should be switched to wheat rations slowly to allow adaptation by the rumen. It should take up to two weeks to shift feedlot cattle for corn to high-wheat diets.

The fiber level of wheat is also low (about three percent), so the fiber content of the ration would need to be adjusted to keep it at least six percent in the total ration. Wheat should be coarsely ground or rolled to prevent fines.

During a wet harvest season, many of the wheat kernels may sprout before harvest. Most studies have shown sprouted wheat will not effect gains or feed efficiency for beef cattle compared to normal grain. The usual limitations for use of wheat in rations should be used. High levels of sprouting will effect the energy value of the feed.

Wheat that is more than 20 percent sprouted has been shown to have about 92 percent of the energy value of normal grain. Also, precautions should be taken to identify molds that may be present in sprouted grain. Excessively moldy or very dark grain should not be fed, and even slightly moldy grain should not be fed to pregnant cows or heifers.

Selection Of Alternative Feeds

As feed is the largest single cost input associated with beef cattle production, it can easily become the most important factor in profitability.

Beef animals are ruminants, and can utilize a wide variety of feeds for energy and production. Cost per unit of energy or nutrients determines the value of a specific feedstuff for cattle.

Factors to be considered in evaluating a cattle feed include:

- Its dry matter content
- Its availability, transportation charges, perishability, and storability
- Its palatability
- Possible harmful residues.

Dry Matter

The various feedstuffs used in livestock production can differ widely in the proportions of dry matter and moisture.

Dry grain may be 90 percent or more dry matter. In liquid whey, there is usually no more than 5 percent dry matter — the rest is water. (It is obviously less expensive to provide water to the animal in other ways.)

It is the dry matter portion of the feed that provides its nutrients. Laboratory analysis of a feed will provide a precise determination of its dry matter — "quickie" tests with field-moisture testers or microwave ovens can be used to determine dry matter content on the farm.

Transportatio And Storage

The actual cost of transporting and storing a feed is closely related to its dry-matter content. In moving a ton of liquid whey, one is moving about 1,900 pounds of water and only 100 pounds of dry matter. In a ton of grain, there is only about 200 pounds of water.

To determine the actual cost of transporting a feed, divide the per-ton shipping cost by 2,000, then divide this figure by the feed's dry-matter content. For example, if it costs $10 per ton to move whey that is five percent dry matter, its transportation cost is $10.00/2,000= $.005 per wet pound. Dividing $.005/.05 gives the cost of transporting the energy and protein in the whey: $0.10, which is 10 cents per pound.

On the other hand, if you are moving corn (90 percent dry matter) at the same cost, 10 dollars per ton, the transportation cost is $.0055 per pound of dry matter ($10.00/2,000 = $.005; $.005/.9 = $0.0055) or just a bit more than one half cent per pound of nutrient.

Use the same procedure to evaluate storage costs. Consider only the dry matter portion of the feed. An additional cost may be incurred if a dry material must be added to a wet feed to arrive at a dry matter value suitable for storage or proper fermentation. The opposite is true if water is added to material for proper storage or fermentation purposes.

Palatability

While the cost per unit of nutrient may look very favorable for some feeds, the palatability and/or usable form of the product may inhibit its usefulness.

Urea is a good example. Although it provides an extremely low per-unit cost for protein, it must be fed in small amounts, if at all, in some rations. Accurate weighing and mixing is essential to prevent the animals from ingesting toxic amounts. The cost of mixing it with other feeds or purchasing it as part of a complete protein or mineral supplement will add to the cost per unit of protein.

Other feeds where problems may be encountered include feather meal, fishmeal, bone meal, poultry litter, and some fresh vegetable wastes.

Residues

Toxic or otherwise undesirable residues, though not usually a problem, may be encountered in some food processing by-products, nonprotein nitrogen sources, and moldy feeds.

For example, certain types of noodles must be withdrawn from the cattle rations a couple of weeks prior to slaughter. Because of the type of fat used as an ingredient, continued feeding causes off-flavors and colors in the meat.

Some food processing by-products also contain foreign objects or unwanted ingredients (such as metal trimmings in cannery waste and grease and salt in cooked potato waste). Urea must be accurately weighed and mixed into a feed to avoid toxicity. Moldy feeds can be very dangerous to cattle if toxic substances are present. Moldy feeds have less feed value.

Calculating Nutrient Costs

The tables below list the relative energy and protein values for several feeds, compared to a standard feed material.

Mid-bloom alfalfa hay is the standard used here for dried forages, shelled corn is the standard for grains, corn silage the standard for wet forages, and soybean meal the standard for protein feeds.

The nutrient factor is the relative nutrient value of the feed compared to the standard for both protein and energy. The value factor is the equivalent price of the feed compared to the standard for both energy and protein on an as-fed basis.

For example, if corn costs $107 per ton, the equivalent energy value of potato chips is $87 per ton relative to corn, and the protein value is $92 per ton. Similarly, the energy value of dried bean cannery waste is only $88 per ton when soybean meal is $300 per ton; this is because there is more than twice as much water in the waste than in the meal, and about half as much crude protein per unit of dry matter.

Equivalent Pricing

An alternative method of making cost comparisons of various feedstuffs is to evaluate them in terms of the nutrient of interest.

Some arithmetic is required. For example, a cost comparison of second grass-legume vs. third cut grass hay would go as follows. The factors to be considered include DM content, TDN content, crude protein content, and price. Descriptions follow

- Grass-legume hay: 2nd cut,

82% dry matter, 59% TDN, 11% crude protein, priced at $70 per ton.

• Grass hay: 3rd cut, 82% dry matter, 38% TDN, 10% crude protein, priced at $50 per ton.

The purpose of dry forages like these is normally to supply energy, so we are most interested in the TDN values. Differences in protein value are minimal, and dry matter contents are the same, so the easiest way to compare dollar value is by dividing the TDN values of one hay by the other (in this example, 38/59= 0.644) and then dividing the price of the second hay by this number($50.00/.644=$77.63). This is the equivalent per-ton value of the two hays, so the grass legume hay, at $70.00/ton, is the cheaper feed.

Table 1. Nutrient composition of hard and soft wheat

	Hard Wheat	Soft Wheat
Crude protein %	13.5	10.8
Crude fiber %	3.0	2.8
Ether extract %	1.6	1.6
Ash %	2.0	2.0
Digestible energy Kcal/kg	3402.0	3402.0
Total phosphorus	0.41	0.30
Sodium %	.06	.06
Magnesium %	.11	.11
Potassium %	.50	.50
Copper ppm	10.6	10.6
Iron ppm	50.0	43.0
Manganese ppm	62.2	51.3
Selenium ppm	.06	.06
Zinc ppm	14.0	14.0
Vitamin E mg/kg	15.5	15.5
Biotin mg/kg	100.0	100.0
Choline mg/kg	778.0	778.0
Niacin mg/kg	56.1	48.4
Thiamine mg/kg	5.2	4.8
Riboflavin mg/kg	1.1	1.2

Alternatively, the value of the grass hay relative to the other calculates out at only $45.08 ($70 x .644)/ton. If the dry matter contents of the hays under comparison differ, we must determine the value per unit of TDN. If the grass-legume mixture was 82% dry matter, and the grass 88% dry matter (and all other things as before), the value per unit of TDN for each of the hays is calculated by first calculating the pounds of dry matter in a ton (multiply 2,000 by dry matter percentage), and then taking this figure times each hay's TDN percentage. This gives the total pounds TDN in the load and the price per unit is the price per ton divided by this factor.

The grass-legume mixture above contains 1,640 lbs DM (2,000 x .82 = 1,640) and 967.6 lbs TDN (1,640 x .59). The per-pound price is $0.072 ($70/967.6=$.072). Similar calculations for the grass hay show the TDN price to be $0.074 (2,000 x .88) x .38=668.8; $50.00/668.8=$.074. This method can be used to compare any two feeds, whether for TDN, crude protein, or mineral content, as long as the nutrient of interest and the drymatter contents are known.

These methods are useful in comparing two feeds for a particular nutrient. It should be remembered, however, that a feedstuff contains a unique combination of many nutrients. Least-cost computer ration formulations are available through feed dealers, extension agents, and home software programs. They will help to "fine-tune" the ration and account for all of the nutrients in the feed and their ability to meet a particular set of animal requirements.

Northeastern Farm Credit Reports Earnings

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — Strong second quarter earnings of $582,000 on a $196.5 million loan portfolio were posted by Northeastern Farm Credit, ACA in its second quarter financial reports.

The $582,000 in second quarter net income represented a 9.2 percent or $49,000 increase over the same period of 1992.

Robert T. Reich, president of Northwestern Farm Credit, ACA attributed the earnings increase over earlier periods to improved net interest income and a lower provision for loan losses primarily as a result of improving credit quality.

Net interest income for the quarter was increased 8.4 percent from the second quarter of 1992. The improvement in net interest income resulted from higher levels of capital and a decline in funding costs.

Reich said, "were pleased that net interest income has continued to improve, reflecting increased earnings capacity of the association."

Credit quality in the association has improved notably. At June 30, 1993, adversely classified loans represented 9 percent of the loan portfolio as compared with 9.5 percent at year-end. The advance in credit quality was cited as a contributing factor to the reduction in the provision for loan losses since the allowance for loan losses generally moves in unison with trends in credit quality.

Association officials reported a $5.2 million, or 2.7 percent increase, in loan volume since December 31, 1992. The modest gain in volume reflects slowly improving economic and agricultural conditions in the region.

Monsanto Herbicides Tough On Weeds

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Two new experimental corn herbicides under test by Monsanto should offer farmers excellent weed control and superior environmental safety.

The products include Battalion® herbicide, for preemergence control of broadleaf weeds and Permit® herbicide, for postemergence control of broadleaves. They are being tested in field plots covering a total of 8,000 acres under an experimental use permit (EUP) this summer.

"These products offer excellent human and environmental safety characteristics," said Jerry Flint, Monsanto product launch supervisor.

The herbicides are applied at rates up to 36 times lower than some currently available corn herbicides. This contributes to their overall environmental safety.

Studies submitted to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) as part of final registration packages show that there is little chance that these herbicides would move into ground or surface water.

This is because of low solubility in water and aggressive binding to soil particles. And safety studies show that the herbicides pose practically no risk to human health, or to fish and wildlife, when used according to label directions.

Both herbicides control a broad range of important broadleaf weeds.

Battalion offers consistent early preplant, preplant incorporated, or preemergence control of such tough broadleaf weeds as velvetleaf, cocklebur, common ragweed, redroot pigweed, and yellow nutsedge. It is applied at low use rates of 7-10 ounces per acre and is formulated as a water-dispersible granule.

Postemergence Permit provides outstanding control of cocklebur, redroot pigweed, giant ragweed, velvetleaf, yellow nutsedge, and other weeds. It has a wide application window, from the two-leaf stage through layby, with exceptional crop safety. Formulated as a water-dispersible granule, it has extremely low use rates of ⅔ to 1⅓ ounces per acre. It will be sold in water-soluble packets.

Both herbicides degrade rapidly in the soil, regardless of soil pH. So it's safe to rotate to soybeans, wheat, corn, oats, alfalfa, grain sorghum, and many other crops.

Agway Reports Successful Year Of Change

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway Inc., completed a successful business year June 30, according to Charles F. Saul, president and CEO.

He attributes the turnaround at the farm cooperative to business changes initiated during the first year of an intensive three-year business reengineering process called Customer Driven: 1995, and outstanding team work by employees and support by members.

"Although it will be a few weeks before the auditors complete their year-end review and final numbers can be announced, we'll report a profitable year," Saul said. "Agway's overall financial performance is moving strongly in the right direction."

Rapidly changing market conditions and specialized requirements of commercial farms in the Northeast were factors involved in Agway's decision to concentrate on its basic businesses of agriculture, consumer retail, energy, leasing and insurance, according to Saul.

"We have rededicated ourselves to serving commercial farmers with improved service and quality products," Saul said. "Employees are receiving specialized training and have renewed their emphasis on providing excellent service to customers, including providing practical answers to technical questions.

"All five internally managed businesses contributed to earnings above budget," he said. "Feed sales increased dramatically in a flat market, and crop input sales improved despite a late, wet spring. Our revamped retail store system is looking good, and Agway Energy Products produced both volume and solid earnings. Telmark, our agricultural leasing company, had an outstanding year and our farm property and casualty insurance programs, sold through independent agents, contributed to our success."

As part of its plan to provide more effective, direct-delivery service to farmers and other customers, Agway is separating its bulk farm supply business from its consumer retail stores. The new alignment is already working successfully in New England, Pennsylvania, and parts of New York.

"All Northeast farmers will soon be able to order bulk feed and crop inputs directly from Agway's regional feed mills and crop centers by calling toll-free to newly established Customer Service Centers," Saul said. "Well-trained Agway farm sales specialists continue to work closely with their farm customers, providing individualized cropping and animal feeding, handling and housing information, and products." Saul said farms in some areas will continue to deal directly with their local Agway representative for farm input supplies and custom feed grinding and mixing because of the markets they serve and the efficiencies of their delivery systems.

Agway retail store locations, including franchised representatives, are concentrating on implementing a specialty retailing strategy including upgraded store interiors and exteriors, expanded product lines in three categories, including items for the farm, yard and garden, pet food and supplies, and superior customer service, according to Saul.

"Reengineering a traditional company like Agway is a big project, and it could not have been done withiout the tremendous extra effort of our employees," said Saul. "Together with our franchised representatives, we are now able to serve both farm and nonfarm customers much better under this realigned structure. We are already seeing major increases in livestock feed and crop input sales and in consumer retailing in New England, where this new program has been in place for a number of months. Most importantly, customers are telling us it's easier to do business with us. That's one of our primary goals.

"We're excited about our success to date," Saul said. "The Agway board of directors, members, and employees are working well together to implement this transition to a more customer-focused organization. These early results prove that we're on the right track."

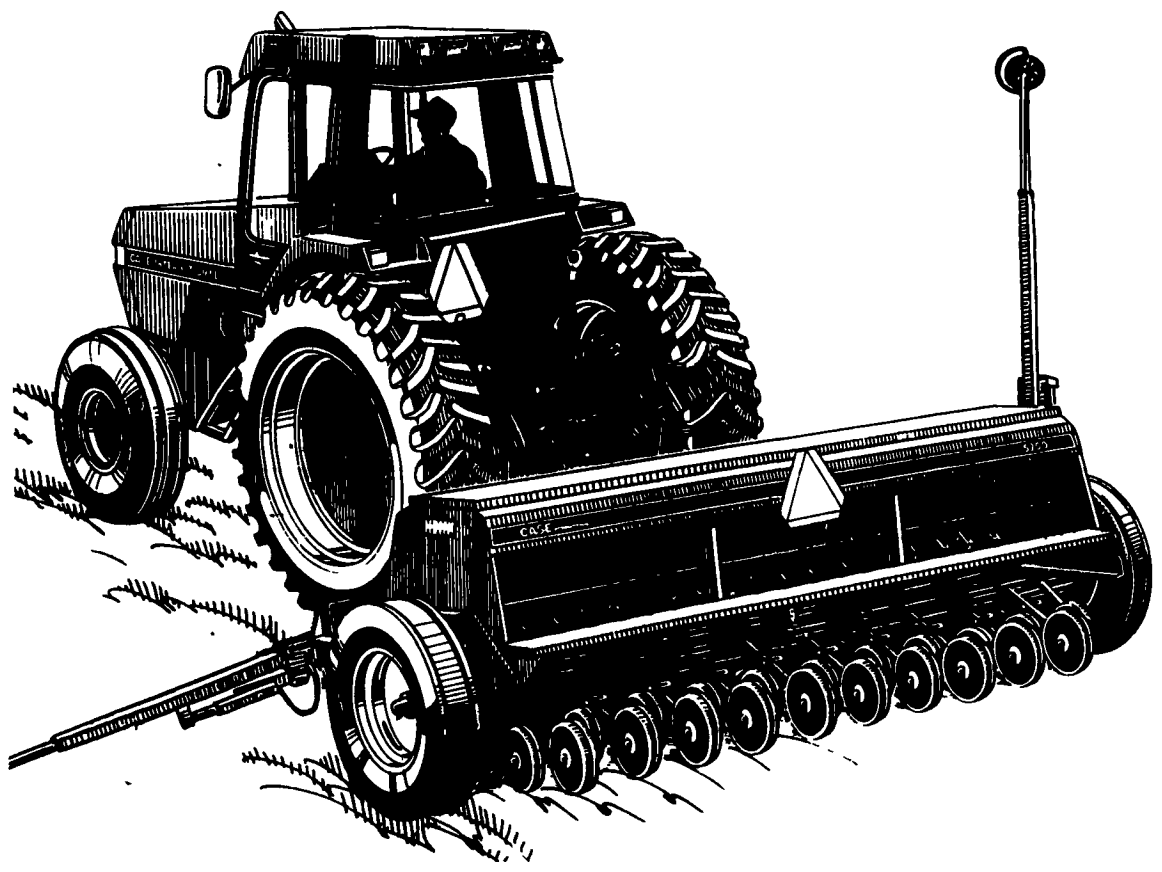
Best Values in New Equipment

Get Even Stands



There's nothing more important to a crop than early, even emergence. To get it, you need accurate, even seeding, and a Case International 5300 End-Wheel Drill.

The 5300 has earned a reputation for its seeding precision, a function of its exclusive feed cup design and dependable disk openers. And, to improve placement of seed, the opener drawbars are heavier than on previous models. Press wheel and opener bearings are heavier for long life operation.

Along with accuracy, the 5300 gives you fast, high capacity seeding, so you spend less time refilling hoppers.

Stop in and see the 5300 End-Wheel Drill today.

Resurrect Equipment With Replacement Engine

FREDERICK, Md. — Engine breakdowns always seem to happen at the busiest times. Although a complete overhaul will work, a replacement engine may be a more sensible approach.

"Just having a piece of equipment sit for a few hours can cause big problems when you're on a tight schedule," said Kevin Dotterer, parts manager, Ceresville Ford New Holland Inc.

Not knowing the cause of the problem, how much repairs will cost, or when the machine will be running again can leave equipment owners confused and frustrated. Dotterer offers a solution — consider replacing the engine instead of an overhaul.

Kevin Dotterer

"When you're deciding whether to rebuild or replace an engine, there's more to consider than cost. The amount of downtime, risks of mixing old parts with new ones, possibility of future breakdowns and length of warranty must all weigh on the decision."

If an engine is not performing up to par, consumes more oil than normal or is blowing excess smoke out the breather pipe, a compression check will show if major repairs are needed. Determining the exact cause of the problem involves tearing the engine down and examining all pieces for wear. When the block needs to be rebored or the crankshaft needs regrinding, both repair costs and downtime may increase, said Dotterer.

"To avoid the pitfalls associated with an overhaul job, be sure to consider the advantages of installing a brand new replacement engine," he said. "When you add on the cost of lost time before the rebuilt engine is back on the job, the price of one of our BSD (Basildon Series Diesel) Engines is comparable to an overhaul, usually only 5-10 percent more."

Durability and improved technology are other benefits of a replacement engine. All Ford New Holland BSD engines feature the latest design components, are hot tested and run up to power before leaving the assembly line.

"Thanks to quality workmanship and factory testing, Ford New Holland has the confidence in BSD engines to offer a full one-year warranty. Warranties on over-hauls are usually limited to 90 days."

Dotterer adds that Ford New Holland replacement engines are available for immediate shipment. "With one call, the engine's on its way. Plus, the design of these engines makes installation easier. Often, we can install one faster than an overhaul."

Dotterer said that BSD replacement engines are available for most applications. Ford New Holland carries a BSD engine for nearly every Ford tractor model dating to 1965. "Not all manufacturers maintain this extensive of an inventory," he said.

"So the next time a machine shows these tell-tale signs — difficulty starting, power loss, or oil consumption — pull it into our shop for a compression check," he said. "After you visit us for a thorough engine examination and a detailed discussion of the results, it'll be easier to determine your most cost-effective alternative."

You may have heard of an exciting difference in soybean processing. A unique toasting process where the soybeans never come in contact with the flame that can affect nutrition. Weaver's Toasted Grains has been offering this process for over a year. Join us on Wednesday September 15, 1993 from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. for an open house celebration where you can see the toaster and storage facilities you've been hearing about. ADC Meets Farmers' Needs
More Than $129 Million in Extra Payments

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past six years, we returned more than $129 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $36,600 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.7 million a month.

Robert B. McSparran
President

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

Mushroom Growers Become Demonstration Farm

AVONDALE (Chester Co.) — Jim and Bob Yeatman, operators of C.P. Yeatman & Sons, Inc., mushroom growers, joined a select group of community-minded growers by becoming a "demonstration farm" in the Red Clay and White Clay watershed.

They were joined by Richard Forte, A. & F. Mushrooms, Inc. Kennett Square, who also signed an agreement with the Chester County Conservation District, said Robert Francis, district vice chairman, who attended the signing ceremonies.

This makes a total of five demonstration farms in the watershed who are installing best management practices (BMPs) to protect water quality in the Red Clay and White Clay creeks, Francis said.

The Yeatman's and Forte join Guizzetti & Sons, and Barclay Hoopes, of Landenberg, along with Modern Mushrooms of Kennett Square, who are already installing BMPs.

BMPs such as catch-basins to enable recycling of polluted water for use in composting, diversions, and waterways are among the conservation practices used to prevent polluted water from entering streams. BMPs are being installed on local lands so other growers, and the interested public, can see and evaluate what is being done to enhance stream life and associated water uses that we all depend on, Francis said.

Jim Yeatman said, "It's important that the public know that we care."

Potato Research Referendum Approved

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff has announced the results of the Pennsylvania Potato Research Program Referendum.

"The Potato Research Referendum has been approved by a margin of 76 percent in favor to 24 percent opposed," Wolff said. "The referendum ensures that important research will continue to be funded through the program."

Under the approved referendum, producers who plant five acres or more of potatoes for sale will be assessed $4 for each acre. A producer is defined as a person who produces, grows, or causes to be produced potatoes in the commonwealth.

Program funds are used to support research that improves harvests by developing methods to control potato diseases and insect pests, and by investigating productivity and growing conditions. Four research projects will be funded this year.

Crop Disaster Relief Announced

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Farmers in Berks County may apply for financial relief from crop losses sustained as a result of hot and dry conditions during the 1993 growing season, announced Richard Troutman of the Berks County ASCS.

Under legislation signed by President Clinton on August 12, appropriations have been made available for 1993 crop losses because of damaging weather and related conditions occurring in 1993.

Eligible producers may apply for benefits on most crops through March 1994. To be eligible for payments, a producer must have sustained a 35-percent loss to a particular crop while carrying crop insurance. Otherwise, a 40-percent loss is required for eligibility.

"While it may be too early in many cases to determine exact losses, producers should be prepared to provide the needed data," said Troutman. To be prepared, they should contact the Berks County ASCS office for detailed information.

Producers will receive payment based on the difference between normal production on all crop acreage on a given farm and the 1993 actual production. The rate of payment is 65-percent of the target price (for participating program crops*) or county loan rate (for nonparticipating program crops) established for the crop.

Currently, the 1993 program covers losses to quantity only. It is anticipated that quality losses will be added in a manner similar to the disaster programs covering the 1990, 1991, and 1992 crop years.

Payment for 1993 losses in for the full amount for which eligibility is established and is not subject to factoring the meet budgetary ceiling.

State Recognizes Century Farms

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Eleven Pennsylvania farm families have been honored by the State Department of Agriculture as official Pennsylvania Century Farms. This brings to 1,633 the number of farm owners in Pennsylvania who have been recognized under the program.

"Our Century Farm families demonstrate a durability and love of the land that is the heritage of Pennsylvania," said Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff. "Agriculture continues as Pennsylvania's leading industry and job creator because of the hard work, dedication, and innovation of rural families like these."

The Century Farm Program honors families whose farms have been in the same family for more than 100 consecutive years, contain at least 10 of the original acres, and gross more than $1,000 annually from the sale of farm products.

The following farm owners received certificates from the Department:

- Armstrong County - E. Wayne & Connie McLean, RD 1, Creekside, farm purchased in 1866 by his great grandfather John M. McLean.
- Franklin County - J. Herbert & Alma Frantz, 10471 Buchanan Trail East, Waynesboro, farm purchased in 1838 by his great-great-grandfather Christian H. Frantz.
- Bedford County - Robert W. & Joyce Y. Mearkle, RD 1, Clearville, farm purchased in 1864 by his great-great uncle David S. Mearkle.
- Cambria County - Ralph J. & Marion M. Sheehan, RD 1, Patton, farm purchased in 1878 by his great grandfather Michael Sheehan.
- Lancaster County - Roger & Kandy Rohrer, Girvin Rd., Strasburg, farm purchased in 1893 by his great grandfather Witmer J. Rohrer.

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — A 9-year-old first-year 4-H member walked off with the grand champion award at the Franklin County 4-H Junior Steer Show.

Jodi Meyers, the daughter of Dean and Nancy Meyers of Greencastle, led her 1,095-pound Angus to victory at the Chambersburg Rod and Gun Club. The August 17 show was held in conjunction with the Franklin County Fair.

Jodi, who will be a fourth grader at Greencastle Elementary School this fall, also placed first in her age group in fitting. Her formula for success with her steer, Slick, was simple. "I petted him and watered him and played with him a lot," she said.

The reserve champion steer, a 1,190-pound Angus, was shown by Spencer Walk of Chambersburg. Spencer, 17, son of Steven and Lois Walk, was also named champion shower.

Champion fitter of the show was Crystal Meyers, daughter of Dean and Nancy Meyers.

Judge for the event was Larry High, a 4-H leader and Angus breeder from Lititz. High said he was impressed with the quality of the steers. "This county can be proud of how their cattle look," he said after the show. "I haven't seen steers this good all the way through the class."

CHICAGO, Ill. — Dave Reinecker, York Springs, Pa., was elected chairman of the Pork Industry Group of its annual meeting in Chicago recently.

Elected vice chairman was Kent Gansebom, Osmond, Neb. Joining Reinecker and and Gansebom on the Pork Industry Group Executive Committee are Wilbur Paulus, Lincoln, Ill., and Danita Rodibaugh, Rensselaer, Ind., representing the National Pork Producers Council.

During its meeting, held during the National Livestock and Meat Board Annual Meeting and Demand Conference '93, the Pork Industry Group approved a Fiscal Year 1993-1994 budget of $4.3 million, including $1.1 million for research/meat science and $2.75 million for information programs. The major revenue source is from the pork checkoff administered by the National Pork Board, and from voluntary investments to the Meat Board from packers and processors.

Retiring directors were honored for their dedication to the pork industry as a member of the Pork Industry Group. These directors are Jo Ann Brincks, Iowa (seated 1986); Gene Fogle, Indiana (seated 1986); Pat Cooper, at-large (seated 1989), Stan Kerber, Hormel Foods (seated 1986); Larry Larson, Minnesota (seated 1985); Margaret Ledger, Iowa and National Pork Producers Council (seated 1988); and Sharon Schwartz, Kansas (seated 1986).

Miller Has Supreme Champion In Somerset Junior Dairy Show

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — "You can't take this cow apart," said type judge Steve Mowry, Bedford Co., about the four-yr.-old Holstein cow owned by Kirsten Miller, 14, Boswell, which he named Supreme Champion of the Junior Dairy Show. "This cow has everything."

Quaker Farm Astrojet Sue Allen, even to the eye of the less experienced, appeared an outstanding cow with beautiful smooth lines in the right places and a beautiful udder.

The sire/dam are Bridon Astro Jet and Quaker Farm Powerpac Miss Elly. Birthdate is 12-14-88. Breeder is Mark Clarence Miller of Boswell.

The young lady belongs to the Supermilkers 4-H Club and attends the Johnstown Christian School. With an older brother and two younger sisters, she is the daughter of Mark and Martha Miller.

Sue Allen was also the Holstein breed grand champion.

Scott Ream's senior two-yr.-old — Double-Ott V Tab Caran, born 9-13-90 — was named the Holstein reserve grand champion. She was described by Mowry as being very correct, and blending throughout with a beautiful udder attachment.

Ream, from Markelton, belongs to the Milkshakers 4-H.

Ben Miller, Boswell had the best bred and owned Holstein animal.

Grand champion Jersey in 4-H was Char-Dale Grand Slam Selena, a senior 3-yr.-old owned by Ricki Johnson, Somerset. She also had the best animal bred and owned.

Charles Johnson owned the Jersey reserve grand champion. In FFA Eric Lohr had grand champion and Jason Baughman, the reserve grand champion.

Eric Murray, Salisbury, had the grand champion Guernsey with Someday Farms Glenn Sandy, a 5-yr.-old. Reserve grand champion was owned by Kristin Walker, Meyersdale.

Rebekah Fox, 9, Berlin had the grand champion Brown Swiss with a winter calf, while her sister Gretchen Fox, 13, had the reserve grand champion with a fall calf.

A single entry in the Milking Shorthorn was named the grand champion. The spring calf, born on 4-19-93 is owned by Orlo St. Clair of Somerset.

Ben Miller was named the grand champion showman, followed by Ricki Johnson and Suzy Stutzman, Friedens.

Most unusual for the Somerset Co. Fair was the heat and sunshine throughout the entire week with temperatures each day hitting 90-plus degrees, bringing misery to both animal and human creatures. Generally, rain is expected at the Somerset Co. Fair.

Thus Mowry felt justified to confess that in neighboring Bedford Co. the folks say that Somerset has two seasons — winter, and the fourth of July. He said he was getting a different impression that day.

Judging showmanship during the dairy show was Bob Bender, Accident, Md.

Presenting the awards and ribbons were Stephanie Singo and Erica Walker who are the Somerset Co. dairy princess and dairy maid.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

Sisters Team Up To Capture Dairy Honors

NEWPORT (Perry Co.) — Emily and Meranda Dum, Landisburg, teamed up to capture the champion and reserve champion 4-H dairy honors, respectively, during the Perry County 4-H Dairy Roundup held in conjunction with the Perry County Fair Dairy Show.

Emily's champion cow was a 3-year-old Holstein, Dumbelle Elevation Roxy. Meranda's reserve champion was a 5-year-old dry cow, Dumbelle Inspiration Agatha. Meranda also was named champion FFA showman during the showmanship competition.

The Perry County Fair grand champion honor was awarded to a 3-year-old Mel-K-Hos Inspiration Bambi, owned by Melissa Hostler, Mifflintown. The fair reserve grand champion was a 4-year-old, Buff-Del Val-Ed Pontiac Jen exhibited by Brian Fleisher, Newport. Fleisher also exhibited the junior champion of the open show, a senior yearling, Buff-Del CC Logic Cal. The type judge for the show was Don Gable, an Ayrshire breeder from Elverson.

The 4-H junior champion Holstein awards went to Heather Hertzler, Loysville with her winter yearling, Little Ridge Juniper. The 4-H reserve junior champion Holstein animal was a winter calf, Santee-Acres Highlite Satin, exhibited by Amanda Myers, Millerstown. The best bred-and-owned 4-H animal was awarded to a heifer exhibited by Marel Raub, Duncannon. Keith Leber, Blain, exhibited the grand champion Jersey.

Krista Byers, Millerstown, exhibited the grand champion, reserve grand champion, and junior champion animals in the FFA dairy show. Krista also won the reserve champion FFA showmanship award. Josh Loy, Loysville showed the reserve junior champion animal. Tracey Sauder, Ickesburg, showed the best bred and owned FFA dairy animal.

Beef Expo Moves To Harrisburg

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The fifth annual Pennsylvania Beef Expo has been scheduled for the Farm Show Complex here on April 8-10, 1994.

The Beef Expo annually attracts representatives of all beef cattle production and marketing segments as well as a large number of consumers.

In previous years, the Beef Expo has been held at Penn State's Ag Arena in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center's Performance-tested Bull Sale. Next spring, the sale will be held at University Park on March 25, 1994, a few weeks before the Beef Expo.

The tentative schedule for the 1994 Beef Expo calls for an education program, which will emphasize cattle feeding and marketing, on Friday in the new addition to the Farm Show Complex. The program, which has been popular with cattlemen, will be of interest to all segments of the industry. The annual exhibitor reception and Cattlemen's Award Banquet, including entertainment, will be held Friday evening, April 8.

Trade Show exhibitors will arrive at the Expo Thursday afternoon, April 7. More than 60 commercial exhibitors are expected. Special exhibit cattle which are not for sale will also be penned on Thursday.

All sale cattle, including Angus, Charolais, Chianina, Limousin, Polled Hereford, Salers, and Simmental, will arrive by noon Friday. Cattle sales and preview shows are planned for Saturday, with some breed sales to be held simultaneously in two sale rings. Breeders interested in consigning animals should contact their respective Pennsylvania breed associations.

Youth activities will begin on Saturday evening and continue with junior shows on Sunday, April 10. Several special activities for youth are planned.

More information about any aspect of the 1994 Beef Expo can be obtained by calling either of the co-chairs, Ray Grimes, McKnightstown, (717) 334-1022 or Glenn Eberly, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, (814) 865-5857; the Expo committee secretary, Sue Clair, 568 Rock Road, State College (814) 238-1233; Lowell Wilson, Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association secretary, (814) 692-4208; or by contacting the Department of Dairy and Animal Science, The Pennsylvania State University, 324 Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-3659.

Hoss's, Herr Foods Purchase Champions

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — For the fourth year in a row, the Chester County 4-H Beef Club members were fortunate to hold their show and sale at the Kimberton Fire Company Fairgrounds.

It was a beautiful day as 22 top quality steers were exhibited in front of judge Bill Holloway. Judge Holloway commended the 4-H members on the extremely good job that they did in raising top quality 4-H steers, steers that would be acceptable to both the packer and the consumer.

The champion steer chosen by Judge Holloway was a 1,175-pound Angus/Gelbvieh cross steer bred by Sonny Hicks of Unionville and shown by Sara Howe of Downingtown. The steer was purchased that afternoon by Hoss's Steak House in Lionville for a recordbreaking $2-pound. Bill Campbell, head CEO for Hoss's, traveled from Holidaysburg that morning to represent his company at the sale.

Bill Campbell, CEO of Hoss's Steak House, purchased the 1,175-pound grand champion steer exhibited by Sara Howe of Downingtown for $2-pound. Hoss's was the volume buyer of the day and also purchased the 4-H Center Steer for $1,568 and donated it back to the club, where it was sold to Don Cairns of Wallingford for $1,176.

Dennis Byrne of Herr Foods Inc., Nottingham, purchased the 1,165-pound reserve champion steer from Phil McAllister for $1.35-pound. Dennis's son Adam is also pictured.

Hoss's was also the volume buyer of the day purchasing four steers. Hoss's also purchased the 4-H club steer that was fed by the McAllister family of Spring City for $1,568 and he then donated the steer back to the club to resell it again for the center.

The 980-pound steer was then purchased by Donald Cairns of Wallingford for $1,176. Matt McAllister of Spring City donated $115.65 from the sale of his steer, making the grand total raised for the Center $2859.65. Thrifty Pallet Company of West Chester, owned by Bill Fairbairn, donated the $300 to cover the purchase price of the steer.

Phil McAllister of Spring City exhibited the reserve grand champion market steer, which weighed 1,165 pounds and was purchased by Herr Foods, Inc. for $1.35-pound. The steer was then donated to the House of His Creation in Sadsburyville.

Both Herr Foods and Herr Angus Farms have been big supporters of the Chester County 4-H Program in years past. They also purchased all of the resale steers, which helps the overall sale tremendously.

Keystone Farm Credit, Avondale purchased Matt McAllister's heavyweight steer, which weighed 1,285 pound, for $.99-pound, and Matt then donated $115.65 to the 4-H Center Fund.

A new dimension to this year's sale was the sale of the 4-H Beef Club steer named Romano. He was purchased by the Beef Club members from the Devereux Foundation and then was fed by the McAllister Family at their expense in order to raise money for the new 4-H Center that will be built in Chester County along Route 322 in West Brandywine Township. Hoss's purchased the 4-H steer for $1,568 and then donated the steer back to the club to resell it again for the center. The 980-pound steer was then purchased by Donald Cairns of Wallingford for $1,176. Matt McAllister of Spring City donated $115.65 from the sale of his steer, making the grand total raised for the Center $2,859.65. Thrifty Pallet Company of West Chester donated the $300 to cover the purchase price of the steer.

Fourteen steers were sold for an average price of $1.13-pound, a record breaking average for Chester County 4-H members. Eight steers were selected to represent Chester County 4-H at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg in January.

Champion senior showman honors went to Jennifer Dunleavy, Glenmoore with reserve honors going to Matt McAllister of Spring City. Champion junior showman was Kasey McAllister of Spring City and reserve champion was Jon Howe of Downingtown. The champion Angus heifer was exhibited by Jason Marsch of Pottstown and the reserve champion to Jennifer Dunleavy of Glenmoore. Champion and reserve champion Simmental heifers were exhibited by Jason Wagner of Spring City.

THE CLAAS HARVESTER

MAXIMUM FEED QUALITY

To ensure maximum feed quality from maize it is vital to crack every kernel. Digestion of uncracked maize falls as the maize becomes drier. Independent trials have shown the Claas corn cracker to be close to 100% effective. From the cylinder the corn passes through the two large diameter rollers with saw tooth profiles The rollers run at different speeds to intensify the grinding effect and open up each kernel It is a fairly tough process so the latest generation of corn crackers take account of the wear involved on the rollers. Nothing can reduce the wear but Claas have cut the cost of repair by making the outer sleeve replaceable The shaft, drive pulley and bearings can all be reused which cuts down repair bills dramatically. Adjusting the distance between the two rollers is accomplished by turning two handles, easily accessible behind the cab. In no time at all the degree of cracking can be matched to the ripeness of the crop.

RELIABILITY

The CLAAS Cutterbox is a unique balanced design using 2 knives in a V configuration. This forces the cutting action toward the center instead of the outside. This is the secret of their horsepower requirement and good quality of cut.

AGCO ALLIS

UTILITY VERSATILITY

The AGCO Allis 5670 and 5680 utility tractors offer fuel efficiency, reliable drawbar and PTO power, and excellent maneuverability in the 63-72 PTO hp range They're also backed by a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty

- Air- and oil-cooled diesel reliability. The 4-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engine delivers 63 PTO hp in the 5670 and 73 PTO hp in the 5680, both with a 22% torque rise It also eliminates components that cause downtime in liquid-cooled engines. Plus, it is among the best in fuel consumption tests
- Lots of speed choices. The synchropower transmission with synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting , hydraulically-actuated clutch. The optional transmissions include 16 forward and 16 reverse with creeper speeds and a dual-speed of 24 forward and 12 reverse speeds Both tractor models are available as either 2WD or AWD
- PTO power to do more. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/I 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers Optional telescopic lower links are available.
- Quality features put you in control. The 5600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear* radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes, and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns.

"IT IS TIME TO ONCE AGAIN GET SERIOUS ABOUT STORING YOUR VALUABLE FEEDS!!!"

The recent "innovations" and temporary methods of storing your grains and forages are just not protecting your feeds like they should, nor are they really efficient.

Research and practical experience has shown that "the tower silo has never been equalled in its ability to protect your forage quality." And remember... "on most dairy farms, forage quality is the single most important factor affecting profit."

Contact us soon to be sure you get on our schedule to have your poured concrete tower silo constructed in time for your corn silage harvest..,

UPDATE... SUCCESS CONTINUES!

BRICKHOUSE FARM

CHESTERTOWN, MD

Ted Morris has been farming the family farm in Kent County, Md. for 31 years. With the able assistance of Mike and Amos, pictured with Ted, they work 465 acres and milk 99 cows 2 times a day.

Since working with Eugene Garrett, Purina Mills Representative, Ted's excellent management ability combined with Purina's Feed Programs, have improved production dramatically.

Amos Ted Morris Mike

Ted realizes that many variables enter into the ups and downs of milk production. However, he is high on the service provided by his Purina Representative and results achieved with the Purina Feed Programs.

Purina Mills thanks Ted Morris for sharing his experience and wishes him continued success.
